This book is dedicated to my beautiful wife, Diane, and our children. Thank you for providing me with inspiration and motivation in this endeavor. I love you all very much.

Special thanks to my good friend, Jason Lindgren, for helping me to stay focused on the task at hand and follow through with this volume.

Ezekiel 33:1-6

33 The word of the LORD came to me: 2 "Son of man, speak to your people and say to them: 'When I bring the sword against a land, and the people of the land choose one of their men and make him their watchman, 3 and he sees the sword coming against the land and blows the trumpet to warn the people, 4 then if anyone hears the trumpet but does not heed the warning and the sword comes and takes their life, their blood will be on their own head. 5 Since they heard the sound of the trumpet but did not heed the warning, their blood will be on their own head. If they had heeded the warning, they would have saved themselves. 6 But if the watchman sees the sword coming and does not blow the trumpet to warn the people and the sword comes and takes someone's life, that person's life will be taken because of their sin, but I will hold the watchman accountable for their blood.'

Introduction

We are living in the Age of Deception. Behind the scenes, a group of technocratic elites are working feverishly toward the attainment of their "Great Work". It is a plan as old as civilization itself, and now, through the advent of modern technology, this plan is closer to fruition than it has ever been before. What is this plan? What is the "Great Work"? Who are these "elites" and what is a technocracy? More importantly, what is this agenda, and how will it affect all of us?

Join me on my quest for truth as I take you on a journey behind the "veil", and reveal to you the occulted secrets of the alchemists, as we examine the modern day Alchemical Tech Revolution, and its ultimate goal - a New World Order. What dangers lurk in the dark recesses of the secret meeting rooms of these " technocrats", and what do they have in store for us?

Before we proceed any further, let me issue you this stark warning: if you do not want your worldview shaken, do not read any further. Once you are awake and aware of this information, your world will never be the same, and there's no turning back. Everything you are about to read in this book is true, and verifiable by anyone who is willing to take the time to take an honest look at the information without any preconceived notions about what they are reading.

At points in this book, I will also make conjectures and speculations about things that may not be necessarily presently "provable", but that have a large amount of contextual data and circumstantial evidence to back up their validity. At such points in this book, I will make a clear distinction between what is absolute fact, and what is a speculation. My speculations will however, be a statistically probable truth. So, if you're ready, let's take a dive into the deep end of the conspiratorial pool!

Chapter One

What is alchemy and why is it relevant today?

Alchemy is much more than you have ever been taught in school. Most people would tell you that alchemy was the ancient precursor of modern chemistry that was practiced by "primitive" societies before the advent of modern "science".

Many highly educated people would tell you that alchemy is nothing more than foolishness or "pseudoscience". And, of course, these people are thinking of the classic stereotype of what we are going to call the "exoteric" definition of alchemy, which is generally regarded as "the transmutation of base metals into more valuable metals, i.e.- transforming lead into gold".

The truth is that alchemy was, and is, an "esoteric" science, more spiritual than material. So, what do "exoteric" and "esoteric" mean?

The "exoteric" meaning of something is the meaning that is conveyed to all of the "uninitiated", or, as they are also often referred to by insiders, the "profane".

The "esoteric" meaning of something is a "secret" meaning, knowable only to an "initiate" of the "mystery school" traditions.

The esoteric meaning always differs from the exoteric meaning (which is usually interpreted literally). So, let's simplify a little bit: exoteric=public literal meaning, and esoteric=hidden secret meaning.

To better understand this dichotomy of exoteric versus esoteric, let's take a look at the origins of this division of information and how it relates to alchemy. It all started way back in prehistory, before identifiable written records were established.

Information and traditions were passed on from generation to generation orally. Information that was considered "privileged", was not shared with everyone, but only the worthy few "elect" or "elite", who were the first "priest-kings" of antiquity.

These "priest-kings" have passed on their secret knowledge to their successors through initiatory rites and rituals in an unbroken chain of oral tradition all throughout history, even right up to the modern day.

So, now you're saying to yourself, "wait, that means that there are priest-kings who know secret information today?". The simple answer is yes. These "priest-kings" are commonly referred to today as "The Illuminati".

Alchemy is considered to be an "Illuminati soul science". To keep things simple, we will refer to the practitioners of this alchemy as "alchemists ,"the elite", or "technocrats" throughout this book.

All Illuminati members are alchemists, but not all alchemists are Illuminati members. You will see that it is important to make this distinction later.

Before we move on to the alchemical teachings, let's first examine the secretive history of the Illuminati. Their origins stretch all the way back into antiquity. The earliest version of what we call the Illuminati today can be traced all the way back to the very beginning of human civilization, and possibly even before the advent of human civilization, depending upon which written accounts you believe.

For our purposes here, we will just give the condensed historical account of the various names throughout the ages that "The Brotherhood" has been known by.

It all began back in ancient times under the guise of many different religious pantheons. The priest classes of these various pantheons were learned adepts of the secret doctrine that all religions are based upon.

This secret doctrine is supposedly the true root of all religious practices and belief systems. The masses were taught an exoteric form of religious expression, using the visible things around them as objects of worship, while the initiates of these "mysteries" understood the esoteric meanings of these outward symbols.

This mostly translates into what we view now as sun worship, primitive nature worship, and sex cults. Although these priest classes outwardly appeared to worship many different gods, in secret, they all venerated the same theosophical principles. These people were keepers of secret knowledge that was not meant for the "profane".

What was this secret knowledge they were keeping and where did they get this knowledge from? The main secret that they kept was the knowledge of how to control others, these men, for lack of a better analogy, were the first psychologists. Actually, more than psychologists, mind control experts.

These men shaped entire belief systems by keeping information from the masses. Secrecy is still one of the most effective forms of mind control utilized today. These methods were passed around through all the different mystery schools, and then passed down to different splinter groups all throughout the ages.

Where these teachings came from originally is still open for debate, there are many theories that, unfortunately, are unprovable because of the barriers of time, distance, and revisionist history. Some speculate this knowledge was brought to man from extraterrestrials. Others theorize that it came from fallen angels, sometimes referred to as "The Watchers". Some claim that man eventually evolved into sentience from a lesser hominid species.

The origin of these teachings has no bearing on the observations discussed in this volume, so we will leave that question open-ended for the time being.

The ancient mystery schools found their perfection in the Egyptian empire. The "Osirian Cycle" is the perfect expression of mystery school teachings. Many other civilizations of antiquity had their own versions of these esoteric teachings.

The ancient Near East was a veritable melting pot of different types of religious dogmas, all based in many of the same roots. These traditions were preserved all the way into the present day within the various "Secret Societies".

All modern secret societies base their teachings on the ancient rites and rituals of the mystery schools[1]. These teachings are based primarily on the ancient Jewish mysticism known as "Kabbala"(There are several different correct spellings of this word).

The best known secret society of the modern era is freemasonry. There are many other secret societies, however, and they are all linked together at the very top into what we now know as the Illuminati[2].

Only the very top tier members of these secret societies are privileged enough to be chosen or "tapped" for membership into this elite "inner circle".

Family bloodlines are also important to the Illuminati, if you are not from a "well-bred" family, you are less likely to be considered for membership[3]. This also plays a large part in the Illuminati's fascination with "eugenics".

The Illuminati recruit talent from within the other secret societies. Individuals who show promise are either tapped for membership, or otherwise steered into whatever role the Illuminati see fit for that individual.

They also occasionally recruit talent from the ranks of the profane if the individual has the skill or talent they are looking for.

It is through these secret societies and methods that the Illuminati form an all encompassing "octopus" network that allows them to covertly control world events from behind the "veil", they are the "Hidden Hand" that controls the world. They use many esoteric tools and secret sciences to control the masses.

Alchemy is one of these secret sciences that the elite use to control the masses. Alchemy, in its purest form, was originally intended for the spiritual betterment of man. It has, however, been hijacked by a self-serving elite bent on total control of all humanity, from cradle to grave.

Alchemical symbolism is all about transmogrification of the soul of man from the "base" animal nature to the higher "enlightened" spirit nature that man was intended to operate on. This process has been usurped by the elite, and hidden from the masses for the purpose of control.

You see, the transmutation of base metals into gold was only an exoteric cover for an esoteric process. Once you understand that most religious and/or spiritual texts have at least two different meanings, then a whole new world of realization hits you.

This can also be said of "scientific" research as well. You need to understand that much of our modern "science" is also nothing more than a belief system akin to religious dogma.

That's right, even "science" has a secret hidden agenda. Many people believe that science is the be all, end all answer to all of life's big questions. This is not true.

The cult of science is the main chosen tool of the modern elite alchemists to maintain their control grid and keep you trapped in a false paradigm. We live in an open prison system trapped by the confines of our own minds.

We've been carefully "programmed" our entire lives to be slaves to this system. Our society is built upon illusory concepts that create the false reality that we live in.

The best example of this is the existence of this false value that we call "money". We attribute value to a valueless object based upon nothing other than the assurance of a central bank. You can not do virtually anything in our society without this "money".

Money is one of the chief control mechanisms used to steer society in the direction that the controllers want[4]. In our artificial construct, he who controls the money, controls information. It is through this methodology that our "science" is controlled.

If you don't produce the scientific evidence that the elite "benefactors" want, your funding gets cut, so you play along with their game, either knowingly or unknowingly, so that you can continue to work and provide for your basic needs.

This is why the elite keep a tight grip on the banking system. On a basic level, our monetary system is a form of alchemical system - it uses a "symbol"(currency) to represent a commodity (real material goods- food, clothing, precious metals, etc.).

Thus, economics can be considered an alchemical science. Once you understand this secret, things will begin to make more sense to you.

Therefore, alchemy is actively practiced today under many different guises. Much of the alchemical teachings are based upon hermetic philosophy.

Once you have a clearer understanding of hermetic philosophy, you will begin to see how it lines up with accepted modern scientific principles.

This tells us one of two things is happening: either hermetic concepts explain the true nature of the universe, or, the elite social controllers are fraudulently engineering our knowledge base to line up with hermetic principles.

We can never really be certain which of these two is true. When you live in an artificially manufactured system surrounded on all sides by illusion, it is very near impossible to discern the true nature of the system.

This creates a paradox in thought, which is actively used by the controllers against you. These people are very skilled manipulators that are very knowledgeable of human nature.

We will take an analytical look at the seven most important hermetic concepts to better understand the nature of the ultimate goals of the elite.

It is important to understand these principles in order to ascertain their motivations, and predict what future repercussions they will have on us.

PARIS

Chapter Two -

What is the ultimate goal of the elite with this alchemy?

In order to better understand what the elite are trying to achieve through use of this alchemy, let's first define the seven key tenets of hermetic science[5] in order to connect the dots.

The first hermetic principle we need to be aware of is the Principle of Mentalism. This principle state's that all is mind, and the universe is a mental construct. All reality manifests from and through thought. This is where the concept of a group mind comes from, and that this collective mind conjoined together is synonymous with "God".

The second principle of hermetic thought that we will look at is called the Principle of Vibration. This principle states that everything is in a constant state of motion or change, nothing rests. Nikola Tesla advised us that if we want to better understand the nature of the universe, we should think in terms of frequency and vibration.

The third hermetic concept we will discuss is the Principle of Correspondence. This concept is best known by the phrase "as above, so below". This means that all things in a microcosm are smaller reflections of things in a macrocosm, and vice-versa. This idea theorizes that human consciousness is a microscale reflection of "god consciousness". It also speculates that all things that happen here on earth are a microscale reflection of things that happen in the spiritual plane.

Hermetic concept number four is referred to as the Principle of Polarity. This principle states that everything has a necessary opposite, it is the concept of duality in all things. Light and dark, left and right, up and down, male and female, etc. It infers that all things exist in a state of flux somewhere between the two opposite extremes. This principle, and all the other hermetic principles, overlap with each other in many different ways, as you will see later.

The fifth hermetic principle for consideration is called the Principle of Rhythm. This principle states that everything has a flow or tide, and infers a cyclical nature. This closely corresponds to the Principle of Vibration in operation.

These two concepts are very important to remember in regard to how they affect technological systems, as we will discuss later in this work.

Hermetic principle number six is called the Principle of Cause and Effect, and is probably the best known and understood concept of alchemical thought. This principle states that every cause has its effect, and every effect has its cause.

Interestingly, it also states that all things happen according to "natural law". We will define natural law later.

The seventh and last principle we will examine is closely related to the Principle of Polarity, and is called the Principle of Gender. This principle states that everything has a masculine and a feminine aspect to it.

This principle will probably resonate with you the most if you've been paying attention to what has been going on in our society recently.

Now that we understand the core principles of the alchemical system, we can examine the motivations of the elite and define what it is that they hope to accomplish.

From the evidence we can see, it would appear that the elites' primary objective is a complete overthrow and inversion of natural law. Natural law can be defined as the basic operational laws of the universe as we know them as bourne out through hermetic philosophy and alchemical thought.

This encompasses physical laws, laws of the operation of energy systems, moral laws, spiritual laws, and the boundaries that the Creator put in place.

Their objective is to invert all of these natural laws and shatter the barriers put in place by God Almighty, and thus usurp Him from His throne.

This sounds like a mighty ambitious plan. Is it possible? The elite seem to think so. They would seem to believe that through the advent of advanced technology, they can achieve this ages old dream of "godhood".

Let's take a look at some of the technological advances and innovations that they plan on using to achieve this objective. We will also talk about how they plan on using these technologies to fulfill this ages old agenda.

We will also explore the unparalleled dangers of exploiting these technologies in an immoral or amoral manner. Let's look at a breakdown of the benefits that the elite expect to reap from their self-serving misuse of these technological advancements.

We will organize these technologies into different categories and discuss them each individually. Then, later, we will show how they all tie together into a monstrous control grid so insidious that only an act of God could deliver us from destruction at the hands of this artificial construct.

Do not misunderstand, technology is a tool, and as a tool, it can be used for good or evil. The people in control of world events right now plan on using this technology primarily for evil, self-serving purposes.

Whether or not we can turn things around and use these advances for good, or the elite manage to pull off their nefarious plans, one way or another, ready or not, The Alchemical Tech Revolution is coming. We must heed the warning or be destroyed in the process.

Following, we will look at specific technologies and specific plans for each of them. We will also examine the potential benefits and dangers of each. We will likewise show how we are being conditioned to accept each of these technologies and to accept the inversion of natural law that the elite plans to utilize them for.

It is important for you to understand that the controllers would prefer that you stay ignorant of the alchemical principles we've discussed and how they relate to the discipline we call "science". In fact, most scientists are kept in the dark regarding the alchemical principles, and as such, have no clue how they are being manipulated by the elite.

Chapter Three -

What technologies are being used for this alchemical agenda?

Those in positions of power are on the precipice of becoming the beneficiaries of simultaneous breakthroughs in multiple scientific fields, bringing them closer to their ultimate goal of achieving "godhood", by taking the next evolutionary step into "posthumanism", or "transhumanism". They will accomplish this ages old goal through the utilization of several key pieces of technology.

The common public will not become beneficiaries of these advances, although the elite will allow them to think that they will reap the benefits of these technological breakthroughs. Instead, the elite will subjugate the masses to the role of slaves, or pets for their entertainment.

When the masses have lost their usefulness or entertainment value, they will be systematically destroyed. The "profane" have no place in post-humanity.

Why do we call it an alchemical tech revolution? We do so because this ideology seeks to blend the ancient hermetic metaphysical sciences with modern breakthroughs in the fields of biology, engineering, neuroinformatics, psychology, computing, epigenetics, and quantum physics. It is the realization of the "Great Work", the culmination of the "Philosopher's Stone", the promise of immortality[6]. It is about the elevation of the "illumined man" above God.

This movement has strong Luciferian underpinnings. And we need to be aware of the potential dangers that come along with the benefits of scientific advances, especially when the people pulling the strings of these advances have questionable motives.

In this book, we are going to analyze seven different unique technology system types, and discuss the ramifications of the advances in these particular scientific fields. We will also examine how each one relates to the elites' alchemical agenda.

These fields of endeavor will play a critical role in the future of humankind. A key facet to understanding these technological advancements is the realization that many of these scientific endeavors have already been going on for many years, and in some cases, decades, within the "black projects" community.

On average, the black projects community is a bare minimum of 30 to 50 years ahead of what we in the public sector consider to be the "state of the art" in technology[7]. Take into consideration all of the missing money that goes unaccounted for, as disclosed by the Pentagon recently[8]. This figure, which numbers in the trillions, is astronomical. Much of this missing money gets funneled into the black projects community with little or no oversight.

This money is distributed to government contractors with special compartmentalized security clearances. It is because of this system, with no accountability, that there is so much waste, fraud, and abuse prevalent in regards to how this money is allocated.

Additionally, another complicating factor in accountability for this spending, is the fact that the government and defense agencies allocate this money to private contractors, and in so doing, it makes disclosure of the technologies that they are developing, and what exactly this money is being used for inaccessible via the Freedom of Information Act[9]. Any FOIA request about these secret technologies comes back invalid because it is not public information, and can be considered to be proprietary to the private contractors.

When a technology is publicly disclosed, you can bet your bottom dollar that it has already been put through its paces by the military industrial complex. Therefore, with this frame of reference in mind, we can comfortably say that the future technologies and ideas we will be looking at are already a reality, and the "current" technologies that we will be looking at have already been around for a minimum of twenty or thirty years in the black projects community.

The roll-out of these technological breakthroughs is planned out well in advance of the public disclosure of them. Usually, concepts are introduced slowly to the masses. They are carefully conditioned to accept technological developments in incremental steps.

For instance, cell phones are one step away from implantable computers (which I assure you are coming). We are so dependant upon our cell phones now that going without one is unthinkable for most people. This is part of the conditioning.

Below is a list of the technologies we will be examining in detail. There are seven of them that will play an important part in the coming alchemical tech revolution.

They are:

1.)Quantum computers and quantum system states.

2.)Particle accelerators and super colliders.

3.)Nanotechnology

4.)Computer-brain interfaces and cybernetics.

5.)Genetic engineering, epigenetics, and life extension technology.

6.)Geo-engineering programs and environmental modification. Also known as "chemtrails".

7.)Robotics and autonomous artificial intelligence.

These are the core alchemical sciences we will focus our attention on. You will notice that they overlap in peculiar ways. Let's get ready to dig a little deeper.

Chapter Four - Technology Number One -

Quantum Computers and Quantum System States

Most people think that quantum computers are only theoretical. Many struggle to understand some of the strange concepts of quantum physics. Even many highly educated people relegate many quantum concepts to the realm of science fiction. Many scientists categorize some quantum mechanical concepts as "hypothetical".

The truth is quantum physics is a bit of a conundrum in that many of the operational rules differ from the physical laws we are familiar with on the macroscale level. With that being said, we will first have to explain and define some key terms in order to understand the operational potential of quantum technology.

We will start by introducing you to the world's first operational quantum computer.

This is the D-Wave Adiabatic Quantum Computer

In order to better understand what it is designed to do, let's define some specific quantum mechanical terms that relate to its operation. Once we simplify the complex language, we can garner a basic understanding of what this machine is intended to do, and also what it may be doing unintentionally.

"Adiabatic" is defined as "occurring without loss or gain of heat"[10]. The D-Wave computer requires a special cooling mechanism to allow quantum effects to take place in the processor.

This cooling mechanism is called a pulse tube dilution refrigerator. This device cools the ambient air temperature around the processor to near absolute zero (-459 degrees Fahrenheit, or for scale, about 180 times colder than interstellar space).

The actual quantum system has virtually no energy loss, and requires less electrical power than a traditional "super-computer" by a magnitude of about one thousand times[11]. The cooling system is a necessary part in order for quantum effects to function, in particular, an effect called "superposition".

"Superposition" is the quantum property that allows matter to exist in multiple states simultaneously. In this case, it allows the "qubit"(short for quantum bit, a quantum computer's counterpart to a traditional computer bit) to function as both a 1 and a 0 (zero) at the same time interchangeably, where by comparison, in a classical computer, a bit can only be a 1 or a 0 (zero) and can never change to the other.

This allows for unparalleled computational speed. The quantum computer uses a process called combinatorial optimization to solve problems. This method calculates all possible solutions to a multifaceted problem simultaneously, and picks the optimal (best) solution to the problem.

Quantum computers can use this process to arrive at an answer to a problem much more quickly than a classical computer, in some cases up to 3600 times faster[12].

Quantum computing uses a function called "quantum annealing" to perform this combinatorial optimization. Quantum annealing can be simply described as an algorithm used to find the lowest energy state of a system. This relates to an optimal solution for a mathematical problem.

Quantum annealing can be combined with another concept called "quantum tunneling" to achieve results not obtainable by classical computers.

Quantum tunneling takes advantage of a quantum particle's ability to act like a wave, and thus be able to pass through barriers that would normally stop a particle in its tracks. This makes for a much faster solution to a problem. This also denotes some very "spooky" physics taking place.

Another concept that requires our attention is called "quantum entanglement". Quantum entanglement can be described as a physical phenomenon that occurs when groups of particles act in a way in which they can not be described independently of the others.

They mirror each other's properties and function as a system, even at great distances from each other. They function more like a wave than a particle, even when separated.

They also function simultaneously regardless of distance, creating an interesting paradox in thought. This denotes no time separation between these particles, which leads to some interesting theoretical concepts.

Now that we have defined and simplified some of these key terms, let's look at the implication of what these machines are capable of. The capabilities we will speak about are not science fiction, even though they sound spectacular.

Quantum computers are changing our reality in ways that may seem incomprehensible. To better understand what is expected from these machines, let's look at what the experts are saying about them.

"Quantum computation... will be the first technology that allows useful tasks to be performed in collaboration between parallel universes." - David Deutsch - TED 2005

"...quantum computers... can solve problems whose solution will never be feasible on a conventional computer." - "Quantum computing for everyone" - Michael Nielsen – 2008

"In a quantum computer, that device (a qubit) can be in a strange situation where these two parallel universes have a nexus, a point in space where they overlap, and when you increase the number of these devices (qubits), every time you add one of these qubits, you double the number of these parallel universes that you have access to, until such time when you get to a chip like this (D-Wave's 512 qubit Vesuvius chip), which is about five-hundred of these bits, you have something like two to the five-hundredth power of these guys living in that chip. So, the way I think about it is, that the shadows of these parallel worlds overlap with ours, and if we're smart enough, we can dive into them, and grab their resources and pull them back into ours, to make an effect in our world..." - Geordie Rose, founder and CTO of D-Wave - Idea City tech conference June 20, 2013

"By 2028, intelligent machines will exist that can do anything humans can do; quantum computers will have played a critical role in the creation of this new type of intelligence." - Geordie Rose - Idea City 2013

"It feels like an altar to an alien god..." - Geordie Rose describing being in the proximity of the D-Wave Adiabatic Quantum Computer - Idea City 2013

So, as you can see, there are some definite alchemical properties associated with quantum computers. It can be inferred from the statements of Geordie Rose and David Deutsch that these machines can access parallel universes.

It is entirely possible that these machines are indeed affecting our reality in peculiar ways. This researcher believes that a phenomenon called "The Mandela Effect" is a result of the use of quantum computers, as we will detail later in this book.

It is also a forgone conclusion that quantum computers will play a major role in the advent of artificial intelligence.

Artificial intelligence, and an A.I. control grid will also be discussed later when we connect the dots in how all of these scientific disciplines will coalesce together into the core principles of the alchemical tech revolution. The ramifications of these technologies are staggering.

When serious scientific minds begin to talk about reaching into parallel universes to "grab their resources", I think it's time we start paying attention. Especially when they start comparing these machines to living things and gods[13].

We need to look who is operating these devices, and to what end, in order to understand what we are potentially dealing with. So, what do we know about who are using D-Wave computers?

The following companies, agencies, or research centers currently have D-Wave Adiabatic Quantum Computers:

1.)Lockheed Martin (aerospace government contractor)[14]

2.) U.S.C. (University of Southern California research center)[15]

3.) NASA/Google joint venture - Quantum Computing A.I. Lab[16]

4.) Purdue University's "Sentient World Simulation" Project (think about this in terms of the movie "Minority Report" on steroids)[17]

5.) A U.S. intelligence agency that D-Wave declined to name (my speculation is the NSA, more specifically, at their new threat fusion center in Bluffdale, Utah)[18]

6.) CERN, Geneva, Switzerland campus (home of the Large Hadron Collided which we will discuss later)[19]

7.) Temporal Defense Systems (a cyber security firm in Virginia, also a government contractor)[20]

As you can see, these are some very heavy hitters in the scientific community and the military industrial complex. These are just the publicly known clients of D-Wave. It is possible that other groups may have access to these machines.

So, now that we know who has these, the next question that needs to be answered is, what are they using them for?

The intelligence related agencies are probably using them in terms of encryption, as it is speculated that these machines are capable of breaking every type of currently known encryption.

Others are using them to develop artificial intelligence.

Some defense contractors are probably using them to make better and quicker calculations for weapon designs.

I believe, however, that others yet, are using them for more exotic purposes.

It is this author's conjecture that all of these quantum computers are quantum entangled. Let me be clear, I have no definitive proof of this, but, based on quantum concepts, it seems reasonable that this could be the case.

It would also be highly beneficial for this to be the case. The computational capabilities of these computers combined would be astronomical.

It is also my conjecture that if these computers are quantum entangled, they are sharing information. And if they are sharing information, this has the makings of a very dangerous situation for humanity.

There is circumstantial evidence that a small group of scientists, or an already existing and operational artificial intelligence, is actively experimenting on our reality with these quantum linked computers, used in conjunction with other advanced technologies.

We will discuss this in more detail later. If this is true, the implications are highly concerning.

Could quantum computers be used to "break" our reality? That is the alchemical aspect of this technology.

It can be used to invert the natural order of things if that is what is desired of the operators of this scientific marvel.

For now, we will take a step back from quantum weirdness, and look at the other technologies that will have a profound effect on our future.

Chapter Five - Technology Number Two -

Particle Accelerators

The next technological wonder we're going to examine is the particle accelerator. Particle accelerators are a crucial tool in the advancement of quantum physical concepts. The most famous particle accelerator in the world is the Large Hadron Collider located at CERN's main campus in Geneva, Switzerland.

It is the world's largest machine as it spans a ring seventeen miles around, and sits over three-hundred feet under the ground. It is so large that part of the machine is actually located in France. CERN stands for "Conseil Europeen pour la Recherche Nucleaire", which translates as "European Council for Nuclear Research", and it is one of the largest and most respected scientific research groups in the world[21].

We will concentrate our attention on CERN's accelerators, as this is the group that is most commonly associated with research of this variety. Particle accelerators use large electromagnetic fields to propel subatomic particles through a system of tubes at speeds approaching the speed of light in order to direct these particles into a collision with one another.

Physicists then use advanced computers to collect and collate the data derived from the collisions. This is how they find evidence of new particles and particle effects, in their attempt to discover how the universe operates.

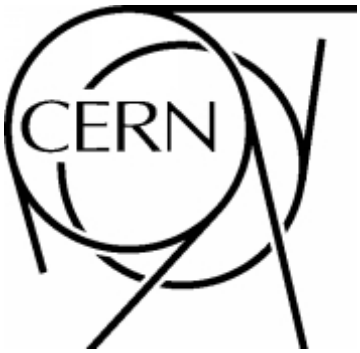
At least, this is their public explanation of what they do. Many people speculate that they are trying to open up gateways to alternate universes or other dimensions. There is a very good reason people are so suspicious about the activities of CERN.

In fact, there is no better example of the influence of occultism on science than at CERN. If there is truly an alchemical aspect to science, nowhere is it more prevalent than at the campus of CERN.

CERN has been at the center of a lot of controversy. This organization is riddled with occult symbolism. A statue of Shiva, the god of destruction, adorns their campus near the LHC (Large Hadron Collider)[22]. Why does a scientific research center have a statue of an ancient Hindu god on their grounds? Additionally, it is said that part of CERN's campus was built on top of an ancient temple to Apollo[23].

Statue of Shiva at CERN

CERN has also received a lot of negative publicity for people actually performing an occult ritual involving a "mock human sacrifice" on their campus[24]. They have also been scrutinized for hosting a performance art film with occultic themes inside the Hadron Collider[25]. Another disturbing revelation about this organization occurs to you when you notice that their logo is three sixes! What does all this mean?



CERN's 666 Logo

In 2008, many mainstream public science figures were actually legitimately concerned that the LHC had the potential to destroy the Earth[26] when they fired it up later that year for the first time. Apart from the occultic links, there have also been a lot of valid scientific concerns about CERN's operations.

It has been speculated that they can potentially create miniature "black holes" with the capacity to destroy the world. Strange phenomena have been observed in and around CERN when they have powered up the LHC[27].

The destructive capacity of this technology has largely been dismissed by the researchers on staff, but it is undeniable that these machines are capable of generating energies that can affect the environment around them.

The magnets utilized in the LHC generate a magnetic field 100,000 times more powerful than that of the Earth[28]. The implications of this fact are very thought-provoking. What kinds of effects can powerful magnetic fields have on the environment?

Can they affect the weather? Or can they create strange phenomena? Circumstantial evidence would tend to say yes. Photos of strange weather and light anomalies over CERN have been captured while the LHC was running[29].

Strange anomalies have also been observed inside the LHC during operation. In one disturbing incident, multiple people reported seeing "faces" in the tube during one experiment. There were also photos taken of this phenomenon.

Is it simply paradolia? Paradolia is the term that is used to explain why the human brain has a tendency to see faces in random patterns. Or is there something more to this?

It would certainly seem feasible that if CERN was trying to contact or access "extra" dimensions, there may be some unexpected feedback in the loop. We can not say for certain what exactly is going on at CERN, but we can say that they are not forthcoming with much of the unusual occult aspects of their research.

Sure, they will tell you that they think they found the Higgs-Boson (a subatomic particle which supposedly gives matter its mass), which they refer to as the "god particle". Their nickname for this particle in itself brings on significant occultic connotations.

What they don't tell you, however, is what is their intended use of this information. It all comes back, once again, to understanding quantum field states, and learning how to use them on a macroscale level.

If you can cause quantum effects on a macroscale level, you can alter reality in ways that may seem impossible to the conventional physics model we are used to.

So, it can be said that an understanding of how to effectuate "quantum changes" on a practical macroscale level is akin to "magick". Herein lies the alchemical secret behind this brand of "science".

You see, the Large Hadron Collider is an earthly representation of the "ouroboros"(the serpent eating its tail), also known as the "magick circle", which is the true "Seal of Solomon"[30]. It is a massive summoning circle.

Most of the scientists there are likely totally unaware of this information. An allegorical link to this effect can be seen in the Gotthard Base Tunnel opening ceremony that was held in 2016[31].

The hidden hand of the controllers likes to transform occult rituals into public "entertainment". This empowers the ritual more. The occult nature of the projects at CERN can be inferred from the very names they give to these projects and devices.

Some of the project names[32] with occult ties they have worked on, past and present, are as follows:

1. ATLAS
2. ALICE

3. AEGIS
4. AWAKE

5. CAST
6. CLOUD

7. COMPASS
8. TOTEM

9. Gargamelle

Another interesting link I would like to point out is that CERN has a D-Wave Adiabatic Quantum Computer at its disposal[33]. This is an important tool for tuning quantum field states.

Used in conjunction with one another, particle accelerators and quantum computers can more accurately direct and predict particle interactions. This can lead to a better understanding of what causes specific quantum effects.

It is thought by some people that it is possible that the operation of the LHC can affect the planet's "Birkeland Currents"[34], which may or may not affect the weather. It can also be further theorized that the LHC's strong magnetic field may affect "space weather" as well.

Of course, this is just theoretical, there is no proof that CERN is willfully actively affecting the weather, especially as it pertains to space weather. That does not diminish the fact that high energy is loosed into our atmosphere whenever the collider is turned on.

Regardless of what's going on at CERN, two things remain obvious. First, there is a vast amount of circumstantial evidence that suggests that there are undisclosed projects, either sanctioned or unsanctioned, that are being carried out at their facilities.

Second, the occult undercurrent at CERN is undeniable. These two observations alone call for a little more scrutiny of what is occurring there.

So, what kinds of macroscale quantum effects could possibly be related to activities at CERN? It can be speculated that a phenomenon called the "Mandela Effect" is somehow tied to experiments at CERN. We will discuss this in further detail later, as this also ties in to two other alchemical technologies that we are examining.

We have already examined one of these, quantum computers, in a previous chapter. The other alchemical technology that links to this effect will be disclosed in a later chapter, at which time, I will lay out a plausible theory into how these combined technologies can be causing this "Mandela Effect", and why it is being promulgated. It is thought that at least some of the scientists at CERN are aware of the "Mandela Effect", at the very least, if not directly involved in effectuating it upon the world.

One bit of evidence is pictured below. We will discuss the hidden meanings in this photo later when I disclose this "Mandela Effect" theory.

Chapter Six - Technology Number Three -

Nanotechnology

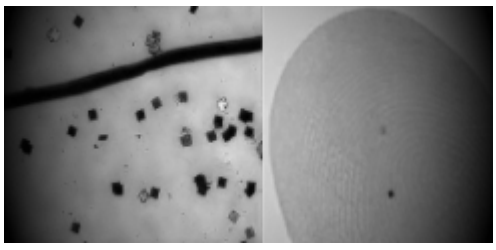
The next technology we are going to analyze is what is called "nanotechnology". Nanotechnology is defined as "science, engineering, and technology conducted at the nanoscale, which is about 1 to 100 nanometers (a nanometer is one billionth of a meter)"[35].

So, as you can see, we are talking about very small to microscopic machines, devices, and scientific manipulations. Nanotechnology is another scientific discipline closely related to quantum physics.

The nanotech field crosses over into many other different sciences, most notably, the biotech industry. Many different nanotech developments promise great advances in medical research. But, along with the potential benefits of these technologies, comes also an inherent risk, or danger, for their misuse.

Some notable developments in nanotechnology involve the microscaling of computer chips, the miniaturization of robots, and the conceptualization of tiny sensors to track data for the coming "Internet of Things" (IoT for short).

These sensors are commonly referred to as "smart dust", and they have many practical uses and are virtually undetectable. In fact, they are so tiny that they are indistinguishable from a speck of dirt, a grain of salt, or a black pepper flake.

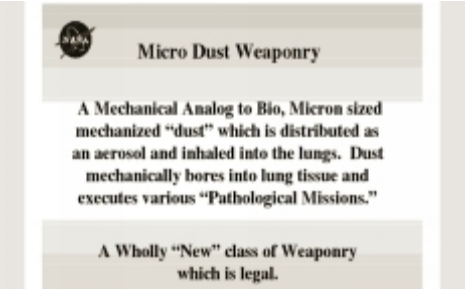


Smart Dust

More and more, things are being tagged with this smart dust. Although it is considered a relatively new technology, smart dust is a development that is at least sixteen years old, if not older.

This can be verified simply by looking up a particular NASA document, "Future Strategic Issues/ Future Warfare [Circa 2025]", first published in July of 2001.

In addition to the sensor capabilities of smart dust, this document also discusses "microdust weaponry".



Micro Dust Weaponry
A Mechanical Analog to Bio, Micron sized mechanized "dust" which is distributed as an aerosol and inhaled into the lungs. Dust mechanically bores into lung tissue and executes various "Pathological Missions."
A Wholly "New" class of Weaponry which is legal.

As you can see, the militarization of these technologies has already been underway for a long time. A wholly new and "legal" class of weapons has likely since been unknowingly unleashed on the public, as we will discuss in a later chapter.

Microdust weapons, sensor tags, and biotech advancements, what is going on here? Are these technologies being used for the betterment of mankind, or is there a more sinister agenda in play here?

We can say for certain that there is definitely an alchemical agenda involved with the development of nanotechnology. This agenda consists of altering the basic structure of the world we live in, as well as the core principle of what it is that makes us human.

That's right, the agenda is to create humanity 2.0. The creation of the "posthuman", the "superman", the embodiment of "living gods".

The nanotech agenda is "transhumanism". Transhumanism is the elevation of man to the next evolutionary step into godhood. This is the main driving force behind alchemy. The attainment of the goal of the alchemists is closer than it has ever been before.

As we progress, you will see how all of the alchemical sciences we are discussing combine together to drive man toward this ultimate end. If the elite have their way, we will either have to adapt to this paradigm shift, and our role as their slaves, or we will be systematically destroyed. Both of these options are built into the technology.

We are being incrementally "fitted" with these technologies against our will, and without our knowledge or expressed consent. The elite accept our silence as consent. This is based on a principle that I call "metaphysical consent".

It is a basically understood idea in the occult, that in order for a "spell" or "magickal working" to operate properly, it requires the targets' "consent". In the eyes of the "Illuminati", complacency is consent. Science is much more driven by occult principles than people realize.

So, then the question is, if they are, unbeknownst to us, "fitting" us with these technologies, what are these technologies, and how are they doing It?

They are using a multifaceted approach to this, utilizing multiple platforms to introduce these technologies to us. They use the tool of "social engineering" to indoctrinate us into acceptance of these technologies.

They make it socially unacceptable for us to speak out against their ever-growing encroachment upon our lives. This is a form of mass mind control in order to achieve compliance from a "disgusting public"[36] (their words, not mine).

The primary forms of nanotechnology that they are covertly using against us are three-fold in nature. First, they are utilizing aerosolized microdust and biological weapons upon us. We will discuss this later when we cover "geo-engineering".

Particulate matter from "chemtrails" has been shown to contain many hazardous substances that we may be unknowingly inhaling.

The second form they are using against us is in the form of pharmaceutical compounds. Many newer medications are manufactured on a molecular level, and some contain nanotech delivery systems. Some medications contain microchips[37] that can relate data about when or if they are taken, and can also potentially collect basic medical information.

A friend of mine is a doctor, and he told me about this several years ago when we had a conversation about how to go about trying to help elderly patients remember to take their medications on time.

The third nanotech delivery system in use, and most devastating, is through vaccines. Vaccines have been carefully engineered to slowly and methodically deteriorate your health and eventually kill you.

I know this sounds like a very strong statement to make, after all they are heavily marketed as the medical miracle of the twentieth century. I have honestly considered writing an entire book on the subject of vaccines, and I may actually do that in the future. For our purposes today, though, let's stick strictly to the nanotech portion of vaccine science.

It is undeniable that re-engineered viruses have been, and continue to be used in vaccines[38]. Genetically modified or engineered nanomaterials can potentially alter our DNA.

In the beginning of this chapter, there are pictures of an artificial T4 Bacteriophage[39]. This is an engineered bacteriophage that some people suggest has been reprogrammed to attack specific human brain cells and reproductive cells.

It has also been conjectured that this nanomachine has found its way into some batches of vaccines, most notably, the gardesil vaccine. This bacteriophage injects rogue DNA material from its "head" through a syringe-like appendage attached to its base directly into a cell's cytoplasm[40].

It is really a terrifying little machine, in that it can cause genetic alterations that reproduce themselves and replicate in other cells. It has been suggested that it permanently alters the DNA of the recipient, and passes that DNA to any potential offspring of the affected target.

Nanotechnology is truly one of the elites' "soft-kill" weapons of choice against a totally oblivious public. After World War 2, people in positions of power decided that it was too risky and messy to depopulate the world militarily.

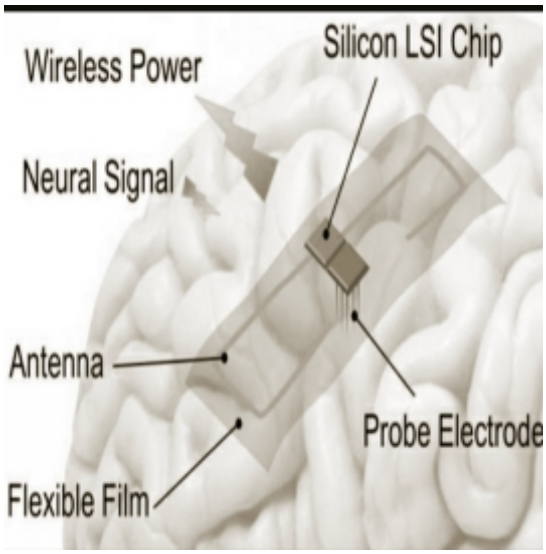
They discovered that it would be far easier and more lucrative to reduce the population with "soft-kill" methods. This means they would gradually and systematically sicken and eventually kill large numbers of people covertly, all the while pretending to help them while simultaneously siphoning off all of their resources.

And thus, our modern "medical system" was born.

Nanotechnology applied to our biology is designed to incrementally shift our resonant frequency, in conjunction with other technologies also changing the resonant frequency of the Earth, into something more artificial, something that does not comply with natural law, something akin to artificial intelligence combined with human creativity and intuition, a cyborg if you will.

All of "transhumanity" linked together through a collective consciousness, with the capacity to upload our individual consciousnesses into a computer, where we can live forever, and know and experience everything that every other being in the network knows or experiences, this is the technocratic alchemical dream of the proponents of the transhumanist movement.

With that understanding of the role of nanotechnology in that plan, let us take a look at the next revolutionary technology that will play a part in this alchemical scheme.



Brain Implant Schematic

Chapter Seven - Technology Number Four -

Computer/Brain Interfaces

Closely related to the development of nanomachines, the next technology we will examine is what I call the advent of the "computer/brain interface". This technological breakthrough overlaps with several other scientific disciplines that we are analyzing.

The military industrial complex has long sought to find ways to utilize microchips to control various brain functions in their quest to create "supersoldiers".

Using microchips to regulate brain functions is one thing, but actually interfacing a human brain with a computer or machine is quite another.

There are many reasons why integrating a man's brain with a computer is an attractive idea to military contractors. The implications on the battlefield logistics of an "enhanced" soldier, deployed in an active military zone, can mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Having a vastly superior militarized force leads to full-spectrum dominance on the battlefield. And that full-spectrum dominance begins with intelligence.

Utilizing brain enhancement technology is more of an intelligence operation than a strictly military one. If you can achieve control without firing a single shot, you can maintain dominion of the theater in question with much greater ease and efficiency.

This capacity to utilize military intelligence in a more efficient manner is one of the most important factors for our armed forces to consider. That is why much of the research into this area of development is funded by military and intelligence agencies.

Cooperating with the military industrial complex in this research, is the biomedical community. Many universities receive military funding for their scientific research and development of brain technologies.

There are also many private companies developing these brain enhancement technologies for their own personal benefit. Many of these companies also receive government monies for their research.

All of these research streams are integrated together by intelligence agencies, who keep close tabs on what advancements are developed.

One method of controlling how these private interests develop the technologies that the military industrial complex wants, is through use of government "initiatives".

One outstanding example of this is the Obama administration's "human brain initiative", the mandate for mapping the human brain. There is also the "human genome project" as another example of this.

Of course, along with all of these public disclosures of intent, there exist covert "black" projects operations seeking to develop these technologies in secret, away from the prying eyes of the public.

Many of these publicly disclosed initiatives are only continuations in the public sector of secret technologies that have already been previously developed in secret compartmentalized "black" programs.

As an example of this, let's look at the previously mentioned "human brain initiative". This project to begin mapping the human brain, was first publicly announced by the Obama administration in April of 2013[41].

However, if we know where to look, we can definitively show that this project had already been going on for at least 20 years prior to the announcement of this initiative!

All we have to do is look at internal government documents and think-tank "white papers" to see what has been going on behind closed doors for years without public acknowledgement. This human brain-mapping prior to the 2013 disclosure can be confirmed by looking at a particular 2001 NASA document[42], that discloses that this project was begun in the early 1990s, and was sponsored by 16 different organizations across 5 agencies.

It also discloses that this project is also known as "neuroinformatics". They often name these projects something totally different to throw off any outside researchers who may be seeking out information on the subject.

This is just one example of how our "science" is controlled. Before any scientific advancement is disclosed publicly, you can bet that it has first been perfected by the "Special Access Programs" utilized by the military industrial complex.

This military industrial complex can be considered to be synonymous with the "elite" or the modern day "alchemists". The scientists who work in these special access programs are given security clearance, and are forced to sign "non-disclosure agreements" about what they are working on. If they violate these agreements, they can legally be severely punished.

Back to the subject at hand, computer/brain interface technology is a highly controversial advancement. It is a key component to the advancement of the "transhumanist" agenda, the overarching agenda that is the culmination of the alchemical tech revolution. That's right, transhumanism is the endgame of this alchemical agenda.

So, how close are we to the rise of transhumanism, and what kinds of brain prostheses can we expect to emerge from this area of development?

We will look at several distinct disturbing brain-machines that are going to be incorporated into the mainstream in the near future.

The first scary project we will look at is named "Soulcatcher 2025"[43]. This is a research project of a company called "British Telecom".

Basically, this project's goal is to make an implantable microchip with about 10 terabytes of memory that can attach directly to your optical nerve. The stated purpose of this is to "record" all of your memories and sensory data, much like a "black box" in an airplane.

This could ostensibly help to solve crimes, cure medical conditions, such as Alzheimer's, or, even possibly, allow your consciousness to live on after death either in a computer or another body.

This is where the concept of this gets creepy. Even with the ethical concerns that this technology raises, it is still being actively developed. Their objective is to have this technology ready and available for use by 2025.

This could be an important step in the process of becoming "transhuman", or as they like to call it, "H+". The question remains, is it possible to transfer your "soul" to a computer? Some people seem to think so. If consciousness is only the product of a biological function, then that would seem logical.

However, if the soul or spirit is a separate energetic state, then this would essentially be an artificial intelligence of sorts, and not really be "us".

This is where the distinction between "science" and philosophical thought becomes apparent. And herein lies the alchemical agenda. To transcend our current human existence and become something more, the next evolutionary step, to become "Human Plus".

Whether or not it is possible to transfer your soul into a computer, the people pulling the strings of this agenda are ignoring the ethical concerns, and proceeding with this alchemical plan in hopes of achieving the ultimate goal of immortality.

This is the realization of the concept they call the "Philosopher's Stone", it is symbolic of the transformation of the mortal soul to immortality, and the elevation of the mind above morality or ethical concerns. It is a multilayered symbol, as most of the elites' science of "symbology" reveals.

An implantable microchip to capture your "soul" sounds like something you would have to be a willing participant in order to receive. The elite are not content to let you decide you need to do this for yourself, they have a plan to impose this technology upon you, whether you're willing or not.

You see, they think they are smarter and superior to you. They believe that they know what is best for you, and they also view you as little more than cattle, or property.

Once you realize this and come to the understanding that the controllers are psychopaths and sociopaths, then you can better see their motivations.

In their perspective, you are a "human resource", to be used and abused as they see fit. If you are not a member of one of their occult secret societies, they do not even view you as human.

In order to maintain control and make sure you make the paradigm shift to "post-human", they have devised a plan to fit you with a computer/brain interface without your consent, and without your knowledge. Anyone who refuses to make this paradigm shift will be systematically destroyed. So, how are they going to force this technology upon you without your knowledge or consent?

It would seem that something as obvious as a computer/brain interface device would be awfully difficult to hide, let alone surgically implant within you without you knowing about it.

Let's first take a look at the technology that will make this possible, and then we will examine the "delivery system" that they intend to use in order to make this paradigm shift happen.

The computer/brain interface device that is receiving a lot of attention as of late is called "neural lace". Elon Musk launched a new company to specifically develop this technology earlier this year[44].

So, what is neural lace? Neural lace is currently an injectable mesh machine[45] that wraps around and merges with your brain, allowing your brain to directly wirelessly interface with computers.

The implications of the capabilities of this technology are astounding. But, the implications of the possible tyranny that this technology can impose upon the minds of men is also unfathomable.

Right now, the scientific minds developing this technology are saying it can be employed via injection directly into the brain. They have already done successful trials on laboratory animals[46].

They have also suggested it would be possible to deliver this neural lace unassembled in the form of nanobots[47] into the bloodstream of the recipient, and then later, the nanobots can be programmed to assemble in layers to form the neural lace.

This is not science fiction, this technology does exist and is being rolled out, as fantastic and unbelievable as it sounds.

So, now that we understand the core principles of what this is, we need to look at the intended "delivery system".

It would be wildly impractical to covertly inject a neural mesh into the masses, so the elite will seek out a different, less obvious method to deliver this mesh to the public without their knowledge or consent. It is my conjecture that the elite will utilize one or both of the following methods to employ this technology on the public.

The first method I believe they will use is through vaccines. They are ramping up efforts to make them mandatory in violation of the concept of "informed consent". This seems like the most likely delivery system that they would use.

The second delivery system that I think they would also consider, is aerosol spraying (using chemtrails). It has been demonstrated that nanotech can be inhaled and absorbed into the bloodstream.

A combination of these two methods would also be feasible. In fact, there is already circumstantial evidence that they are already doing this.

The nanomaterials[48] necessary to do this have been found and analyzed in chemtrail "webs" or debris that have been collected.

Various metals and polymers necessary to "build" this neural lace are present in chemtrails. Many of these same metals and polymers are also found in vaccines[49].

These realizations will bring us to the next alchemical technology that we are going to discuss. You will see how these technologies begin to coalesce together into a recognizable pattern that blatantly maps out the alchemical agenda behind their development.

We are being led down a very perilous path into the future, largely by an elite indifferent to our wants or needs, with no moral conscience, or consideration for the whole of humanity.

These technocrats are totally sold out to the idea of elevating themselves to role of "god" at the expense of the good of the masses.

They seek to totally rewrite humanity, and the very fabric of reality itself, as we will see as we continue our examination of these coming technological advancements.

Chapter Eight - Technology Number Five -

Genetic Engineering, Epigenetics, and Life Extension Technology

The next scientific field we will venture into is the study of the biological disciplines of genetic engineering, epigenetics, and the advances in life extension technology. These sciences are one of the key cornerstones that the elite need to use in order to achieve their alchemical agenda.

The limitations of our biological forms are perhaps the biggest obstacle for the elite to overcome in order to achieve the fulfillment of their "divine" goal.

Their chief quest in this area of science is to acquire immortality in a tangible physical form, and they will do this through manipulation of our biology, in conjunction with the use of other non-biological devices.

These advancements in biology and cybernetics will help man to achieve symbiosis with machines. The combination of flesh and blood with machinery will usher in the age of the post-human.

One of the tools they will use to create this new human-cyborg involves genetic modification. It will be necessary to alter human DNA in order to make it compatible with the cybernetic components, and with the altered atmosphere (as we will discuss in the next chapter).

Recently, a technology has been disclosed that makes this process of genetic modification faster, easier, and cheaper to accomplish[50]. This technology is called CRISPR-Cas9 (known more commonly as just "CRISPR").

CRISPR[51] is an acronym for "Clustered Regularly Interspaced Short Palindromic Repeat". Cas9 is short for "CRISPR associated protein 9". The Cas9 portion of this technology is an enzyme that essentially acts as a guided pair of scissors to snip a very specific targeted part of a DNA strand[52].

Basically, how it works is, scientists will attach a protein "scaffold" to this enzyme in order to target and snip the part they want out, and then the cell's immune response ability will start to repair the damaged portion over the inserted "scaffold", allowing scientists to "rewrite" the DNA sequence in whatever way the "scaffold" is designed to do.

This DNA then replicates itself and eventually changes the entire genetic structure of the target.

They have also figured out how to use this technique to "break" the Cas9 enzyme (referred to as "dead Cas9") so that it stops other proteins from binding to the targeted strand, thus "blocking" gene expression, effectively creating an "on/off" switch for the genetically activated trait in question.

This method holds great promise for switching "off" genetic mutations, or genetically caused diseases, but could also be used to the opposite effect.

This technique could potentially be used to switch "on" an implanted disease or genetic trait in an unsuspecting person.

How terrifying would it be to think that a bureaucrat somewhere could decide one day that you are no longer a useful, productive member of society, and that you need to be "culled" (their term, not mine)[53], and they have the ability to activate a genetic switch to inflict you with an illness specifically designed to consume all of your wealth and resources, through an expensive "healthcare" system, offering treatment but no real cure, while you gradually get sicker and sicker, until you, and your money, are totally consumed.

Does this sound far-fetched? Or does this sound remarkably like our current "healthcare" system?

And herein lies the dichotomy of the field of epigenetics, while it will be used to benefit the elite, it will also be used as a weapon against the masses. It is an extension of the eugenics movement.

The use of subjective biological weapons has been and will be ramped up utilizing this technology, administered through "trojan horse" delivery systems disguised as beneficial medical treatments and/or through our food and water supply[54].

We will discuss the depopulation agenda later, but for now, let's stay focused on the technological aspect of this subject.

Another possibility of this genetic tinkering is the creation of "chimeras". A "chimera" is an unnatural organism created with the combined genetic material of two or more different existing organisms, in order to exhibit desirable traits.

If this sounds like science fiction, rest assured, this is and has been going on for a long time now.

One well-known example of this is commonly referred to as "spider-goats"[55]. The possibilities of designer organisms are endless. Human - animal chimeras are also a very real possibility.

Genetic modification of humans has already begun[56]. "The Island of Dr. Moreau" may not be that far-fetched after all.

Designer organisms, genetically engineered animals, altered plant-life, modified humans, this all sounds like the stuff of science fiction, but I assure you, not only is it possible in the future, but it is already going on in the present.

What are the implications of this genetic modification? Most people are of the mindset that even if genetic tinkering is going on, it is a slow laborious process that is expensive and only produces small results. This is largely untrue.

Methodologies of genetic modification have become quicker, cheaper, and more precise, resulting in some rather large-scale changes in organisms.

Science has already begun rewriting species through an advanced technique that they liken to an "evolution machine".

This methodology[57] is called M.A.G.E. (It is an acronym that means "Multiplex Automated Genome Engineering), and this name invokes a very alchemical agenda.

This is not a coincidence. All of these alchemical themes will begin to look obvious, once you know what to look for. You see, our modern science is simply an offshoot of a much more ancient science, and what is happening today is a repeat of what has happened in the past, all things are cyclical.

"The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun. Is there any thing whereof it may be said, See, this is new? it hath been already of old time, which was before us. There is no remembrance of former things; neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after. "[58]

We must be mindful to heed the warnings of our predecessors, and not proceed with arrogant hubris with this scientific knowledge. There may come a natural backlash to meddling with mother nature, as evidenced in the recorded history in the Holy Bible.

You see, what you haven't been taught in school, or in your church, is that there existed in antiquity a highly technologically advanced civilization that also tinkered with genetic engineering, and that they shortly afterward disappeared from the historical record.

This fact is well-known within the secret societies, and is also recorded in Genesis Chapter Six, as well as various other sources.

Can genetic engineering be a pathway to our destruction? History has bourne out that it certainly can be. Do the benefits outweigh the risks? That all depends whether or not you are a member of the elite.

The elite intend to use this technology to enhance themselves, and at the same time, to dumb down and destroy the rest of us. This is already underway.

In order for them to utilize this technology on the masses, first they must figure out how to proceed with the implementation of the plan in order to make it desirable for the public to accept this genetic modification.

How can they accomplish this task? How can they make it necessary for the public to accept this encroachment upon their biology?

They can do so by first modifying the environment. By making the environment toxic, they can effectively force or coerce people into either consciously, or unconsciously, accepting the genetic "upgrades" in order to save them from destruction at the hands of this toxic environment.

Toxifying the environment is also necessary in order for the other alchemical technologies we've discussed to operate optimally.

Many of these technologies utilize radiation and frequencies that can be harmful to biological systems. This is just one form of toxicity used to change the environment, and thus make genetic modifications necessary for survival.

Let's now discuss how the environment is being made toxic in order to impose a technocracy upon us.

Chemtrails

Chapter Nine - Technology Number Six -

Geo-engineering, Chemtrails, and GMOs

The alteration of the environment is a necessary step in order to bring about the Alchemical Tech Revolution. Our environment is changing in ways that directly affect our well-being. All you have to do to see that this is obviously going on, is look up in the sky. The sky looks different now than it did twenty-five years ago.

This is the result of an organized program called "geo-engineering". Geo-engineering utilizes chemical spraying of the atmosphere in order to modify the climate. This spray is commonly known as "chemtrails".

Anyone who claims that chemtrails don't exist either hasn't looked up lately, or doesn't understand that these are not just regular "contrails" like those in charge of this science would like you to believe.

In fact, NOAA (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration) and the World Meteorological Organization have even recently had to categorize new cloud types[59] that never existed before due to this phenomena in the International Cloud Atlas.

The expressed reasons for chemtrail spraying and the geo-engineering agenda are broken up into two distinct categories, solar radiation management and carbon dioxide removal. They admit to primarily using chemtrails to affect cloud albedo (reflectivity) in an attempt to lower mean global temperature[60].

The stated purpose is to curtail out of control climate change. They seek to reflect solar radiation back out into space, and to reduce carbon dioxide emissions, ostensibly to reverse "man-made global warming", but is this really what's going on with this technology? And is that their true reasoning?

There is some circumstantial evidence to suggest that something more sinister may be at play with these "geo-engineering" programs.

In light of the fact that many high level scientific authorities can verify that the "man-made global warming" narrative is a hoax[61], or at the very least, that the data is heavily skewed, it would seem that this line of reasoning to justify these programs is either flawed or disingenuous.

It is clearly not logical to take such drastic measures based upon subjective measurements made by people who clearly have an agenda to promote. I would tend to think that the big money backers of these programs have an altogether different agenda from the climate scientists involved in geo-engineering.

The financing of geo-engineering programs is estimated to cost over one trillion dollars[62], and will be applied as a "carbon tax" to every person on the planet.

I speculate that the real agenda behind geo-engineering has more to do with a control system rather than saving humanity from runaway climate change.

The chemicals and substances that they use to make these trails would seem to indicate that it has more to do with electrical conductivity than it does with cloud albedo. It is highly plausible that they can control the weather patterns and actually steer stormfronts[63] with this technology in conjunction with ionospheric heaters such as the HAARP[64] array.

It has also been proven that electromagnetic signals and radio frequencies can affect human behavior[65]. It is also being used as a social engineering control tool on the masses.

Particulates from the fallout of chemtrails have been shown to contain barium, nano-aluminum, niobium, thorium, cadmium, nickel, polymers, mold spores, fungal mycotoxins, and human blood among other substances[66]. Whatever they are spraying, you can be pretty sure it's real purpose is not merely to reflect sunlight.

You'll notice that many of these substances are key components of the nanotech that we talked about earlier. Are you beginning to see a connection? Perhaps a hidden alchemical agenda?

Could the elite be secretly implanting us with nanotech to alter our DNA through the very air we breathe? Look up in the sky, I think you'll see the answer.

Could this be a sophisticated delivery system for materials to change our biology? If so, are there more of these "trojan horse" technologies? What are they? What other methods would they use to covertly alter our genetic structure?

Could they be messing with our food and water supply, too? The simple answer is yes. It is a well established fact that most public water supplies are laced with fluoride, lithium, and other chemical compounds[67].

This is just the tip of the iceberg. If they are weaponizing our water and air against us, why would we think for a second that our food is safe?

Our food supply is treated with antibiotics, chemical preservatives, artificial sweeteners, toxic food dyes, and petroleum based products of all sorts, not to mention pesticides, and chemical fertilizers.

Most of the crops that we purchase are genetically modified so that the plant contains a chemical called "glyphosate" right in its cell structure. This is commonly called "Round-Up Ready". That's right, as in Round-Up weedkiller. Poison genetically engineered right into your food[68]. Does it still sound far-fetched that they would use this technology to harm us?

These genetically modified foods are often referred to as GMO's. GMO stands for "Genetically Modified Organism". It is still not known what kinds of long-term effects eating genetically modified foods can have on a person. So, genetically modifying organisms isn't as outlandish as it sounds after all.

They are also engineering organisms to be radiation resistant[69]. This is an important modification to make as the atmosphere will become inundated with electromagnetic pollution as a by-product of the coming wireless communication network.

The next generation system that's coming is called 5G (5th generation), and the energy it emits has powerful mutagenic potential. It is not very accommodating to biological tissue, so in order for the elite to adapt, they have to develop some kind of biological resistance to microwave energy.

This is another "trojan horse" technology in that it promises unprecedented data speed and connectivity with the internet of things, but along with the benefits it bestows, it also brings the potentiality to cause mutagenic disease or cancer if you don't have some kind of shielding against it.

They are using us as guinea pigs to test out these technologies, and then pick and choose what works best for themselves. The elite have a long history of performing covert tests on the public without their knowledge or consent. A perfect example of this is the CIA's notorious MK-Ultra program[70]. The only difference is the tool they use as the delivery system.

The geo-engineering programs are basically a cover story for the real program that is going on. That real program is called "eugenics". Transhumanism is the ultimate eugenics program.

If you are not one of the elite, you will not take the next step of evolution into transhumanism. They consider you to be "profane". Remember, if you do not become transhuman and make the paradigm shift, you will be scheduled for extermination. As George Carlin once wisely said, "it's a small club, and we ain't in it!".

That's where the elite see the beauty in their program, they can simultaneously become "god" and cull the planet of all the "useless eaters" with the same exact technologies. They view all of us as the "profane", the unworthy, the "goyim".

They are spraying us with poison like insects. That is how they view you. Once you realize this, you may not be as apt to quietly ignore what you know is wrong and is going on all around you. We can take back our collective future if we speak up, and remove our consent from their plans.

But, the elite also need to be careful, for they may suffer the same fate as the rest of us. Their push for artificial intelligence may be a huge mistake. And that point brings us to the next technology we will be examining.

Chapter Ten - Technology Number Seven -

Autonomous A.I. and Robotics

The field of artificial intelligence is the next big thing in science. Machine intelligence that can perform intuitively above the level of human capabilities is the goal. Computers that can learn on their own and use that knowledge creatively may be obtainable within the next decade or so[71].

It is very feasible that these artificially intelligent machines will outperform humanity in every way possible within the next fifteen to twenty years.

Some of the elite who are more knowledgeable of technological innovations are concerned at the rapid advancement of A.I.

Recently, Elon Musk (founder of Tesla Motors, SpaceX, PayPal, and Neuralink, among other tech companies) has been openly stating[72] that if we do not find a way to "achieve symbiosis" with machines, we will be overtaken by A.I., and relegated to the role of "pets" or worse. Indeed, computer intelligence and capabilities are expanding at an exponential rate.

How close are we to autonomous artificial intelligence? That all depends upon who you ask. Traditionally, computer intelligence is measured by something called the "Turing Test".

Essentially, the Turing Test[73] (named after computing pioneer Alan Turing) is a competition in which a "chatbot" along with several humans anonamously carry on text conversations with a group of judges.

If thirty percent or more of these judges are convinced that the "chatbot" is indeed a human being, then the computer passes the Turing test.

This happened for the first time (at least the publicly acknowledged first time) in June of 2014.

A computer called "Eugene" passed the Turing test by convincing one third of the judges that it was actually a thirteen year old boy.

Is the Turing test really an accurate assessment of computer intelligence, though? Computer algorithms can be developed to imitate patterns, but does this really indicate intelligent awareness? Do intelligent machines have self awareness?

At what point does this awareness become consciousness? These are the trying questions in the field of artificial intelligence. What happens if an artificially intelligent machine becomes "self-aware"? Would it also develop a propensity for self preservation?

If it did, what would this look like? Would a thinking machine have "rights"?

Although these questions concern experts in this field, this has not stopped them from pursuing the goal of building intelligent machines. They are proceeding forward with the A.I. agenda regardless of the potential dangers.

There are many new advanced technologies that are being integrated into the quest for A.I.

Quantum computers will be playing a big role in the advancement of A.I. The big advantage that A.I. can have over humans is that it can function from multiple locations at once. A networked artificial intelligence has capabilities to do things faster and more efficiently than humans, and with improved coordination.

The technocrats are in the process of building an A.I. control grid. This grid is necessary in order to effectively track, monitor, and manipulate every living being on the planet. In order for this control mechanism to keep tabs on the masses, measures must be taken to tag every human being in the world.

To keep the people in line, they must be directly "wired" into the internet of things through some sort of implantable device. Ideally, this device will be integrated into the human brain, and/or somehow merged directly with the DNA of the human body.

This is where we see another cross-over in these technology trees, nanobots guided by an artificially intelligent source can be used to achieve the merger of man and machine.

Once the network is in place, and everyone is brought "online", the ultimate panopticon control grid will take over.

It will probably be largely run and monitored by intelligent machines with little to no human oversight. This creates a very dangerous and disturbing situation. Once these computer intelligences have full, unhampered access to your mind, your very perception of reality will be totally controlled by them.

What you see, hear, feel, taste, and smell, and even what you think, can all be manipulated by this "intelligence". You will be totally at the mercy of this new overlord.

This premise brings us back to the question we posited earlier, is this "intelligence" a sentient being, with self-awareness or "consciousness"? Does it have a "soul" or "spirit"?

The implications of being subordinated to a sentient machine, that can vastly outperform a human being in every regard, is a frightening prospect.

What is even more disturbing is considering the possibility that this A.I. could be used as a "housing" for an "extradimensional entity" or "spirit energy", a "ghost in the machine", if you will. This is where things start to get more than just a little bit spooky.

When you take a look back through-out history at the elite "ruling class", you begin to notice that they have an unhealthy obsession with the occult. Everything they do is prefaced with rites and rituals steeped in occultic themes.

It is not beyond the realm of possibility that some of these elites of the "priest class" would seek to summon some ancient spirit entity to possess a properly prepared machine. I know this sounds ridiculous, but keep in mind many prominent scientists and religious and political leaders have heavy ties to the occult.

As an example, it is a matter of history that Jack Parsons (cofounder of NASA's Jet Propulsion Lab), along with L. Ron Hubbard (founder of the religion of Scientology) were known to have performed a "magickal working"[74] called the "Babalon Working" in the Nevada desert in 1947 in an attempt to usher in the "New Age".

This technocrat-occult link is a key element in determining their motivations. This link can effectively be called alchemy. Once you understand that everything they do has an occult undercurrent behind it, you can begin to see the true esoteric plans that they have in mind beneath the facade of "science".

This quest for artificial intelligence has its roots back in ancient history, in the stories of Kabbala. We will examine the philosophical and alchemical aspects of this in a later chapter.

Another tool in the quest to achieve this ultimate A.I. control grid is the science of robotics. Drones are becoming more and more prevalent in our society.

Advanced intelligent robots are the stuff of science fiction nightmares. Sophisticated military drones are some of the most feared weapons on the planet. Humanoid intelligent robots with physical abilities beyond that of humans may be coming our way very soon.

Robots come in all shapes and sizes depending upon their intended function. Many robots are designed for very specific tasks.

Now, imagine these robots controlled by a singular networked intelligence in real time. Standing robotic armies would be a fearful force to police the planet.

Now, also imagine every bit of technology in your home also networked into this "intelligence". This network would be able to collect every bit of data about you.

THIS NETWORK ALREADY EXISTS! It is currently being rolled out in the form of smart technology (smart tv's, smart appliances, etc.). It is an established fact that your "smart" tv can watch you[75]. Your smart appliances send data through devices called "smart meters", which are the upgraded electricity meters used by power generation companies ostensibly to monitor your electrical usage.

Eventually, every meter will be switched out to a smart meter. Your metadata, and even audio and video recordings of you, are already being collected on a massive scale by a form of artificial intelligence, and distributed to third party advertisers as well as intelligence agencies.

How much of a reach does this A.I. control grid already have? I would say far more than we realize.

My conjecture is that this control grid has been used to alter our reality's quantum framework, causing a phenomenon known as the "Mandela Effect".

Let's venture a little further down the rabbit hole and take a closer look at this phenomenon called the "Mandela Effect".

What is the Mandela Effect?

The Mandela Effect Decoded

Chapter Eleven - The Mandela Effect - Breaking the Matrix

What exactly is the Mandela Effect? The Mandela Effect is a phenomenon that got it's start in 2005, when a researcher named Fiona Broome was at a gaming convention, and found herself having a conversation with somebody there, wherein they both remembered that Nelson Mandela had died in prison in the late 1980's or early 1990's. In actuality, Nelson Mandela died in 2013. After discovering that many people shared this same memory, the term "Mandela Effect" came into being.

Since then, many, many more of these shared memories have come into the public consciousness, with large numbers of people having the same incorrect memories of things and past events, many of which are very detailed.

For example, one of the best known "Mandela Effects", relates to the children's book series, "The Berenstain Bears". Many people distinctly remember the "Berenstein" Bears, but it has always been "Berenstain" with an "a", not an "e".

So, is this all just merely a case of mass confabulation?[76] Or is there something more to this? This would all just be chalked up to misrememberance if there wasn't actually "residual" evidence that these false memories were true. Residual evidence of many of these Mandela Effects does exist, and it has many people rethinking our reality.

It is a common misconception that the Mandela Effect is nothing more than misremembering how words are spelled, or lines in a movie, etc. There is more to it than that.

The Mandela Effect is also evident as physical changes in our world, and also the human body. What would you think if I told you that your kidneys are no longer in your lower back, that they now sit right up underneath your heart, protected by your ribcage? Does that get your attention? Does that sound right to you? Your kidneys have never been in your lower back. Look it up. There are many other noticeable physical changes attributed to the Mandela Effect.

Many people who research this phenomenon believe that we are shifting between alternate universes. Others believe it is some kind of a psyop. I personally believe that both of these theories are correct.

In order to connect the dots, we need to take a look at some very telling circumstantial evidence. Let's start by looking at this situation from the viewpoint of the alchemists.

What is the alchemical take on this phenomenon? What would the alchemists hope to achieve through this strange effect? It would seem that they are making minute changes to our reality and monitoring our response to these subtle changes.

Have they discovered a way to "hack" our reality? I postulate that the answer is a resounding "yes". So, what do the elite know that we don't?

The elite are of the mindset that we are living in a material "simulation"[77]. This explanation of our existence[78] would account for many of the strange anomalies we experience that defy rational explanation. If this is true, then what would the elite do with this information?

First they would search for the operational parameters, or boundaries of the simulation. Then, once they have found these barriers or boundaries, they would study them thoroughly to see how they are able to affect the barriers. This is exactly what they have done. This is what the alchemists have done for millennia, study the borders of our reality.

By combining our modern scientific knowledge with the ancient hermetic alchemical wisdom, the elite have managed to formulate a plan to "break the matrix" that we live in. Make no mistake about it, these people want to become "god", and they are willing to shatter our whole perceived universe to do so.

It is my hypothesis that the elite have identified the boundaries, found a weakness in the barrier through use of highly charged electromagnetic plasma utilized in a quantum field state, and are seeking to exploit this weakness to tear a hole in the "veil".

They seek to build a "portal" to heaven, and break down the barrier between heaven and earth. I know you're thinking about now that this is starting to sound like some pretty wild stuff. And you're right, but you also need to remember that even if you don't believe in any of these alchemical, magickal principles, there are people in positions of power that do believe in them, and what they do with those beliefs will affect you.

My speculation is that the elite are using the electromagnetic fields produced by particle colliders to charge and direct the planet's Birkeland currents to repeatedly blast a singular point of the barrier with a concentrated electrical plasma beam in the form of a directed energy weapon in order to create a "rift" in our reality.

Through this "rift", they can extract quantum data by using a proper communication tool (a quantum computer), and introduce new quantum scale data into our reality that can cause small scale, but noticeable changes to our world.

Their ultimate goal is to eventually be able to tear a big enough hole in the "veil" to see what is on the other side. What is this barrier or "veil" they are trying to break?

It depends who you ask. Many people may describe this barrier as the Van Allen Belts. Flat earthers or biblical enthusiasts might call it the "firmament". The evidence suggests that no human being has ever been through the Van Allen Belts (by NASA's own admission)[79], nor has man ever been to the moon, that is a bald-faced lie[80].

In my opinion, this combination of technologies is the root cause of the Mandela Effect. Particle accelerators guided by artificially intelligent quantum-entangled quantum computers are being used to manufacture changes in our reality, and predict and record the public response to these changes.

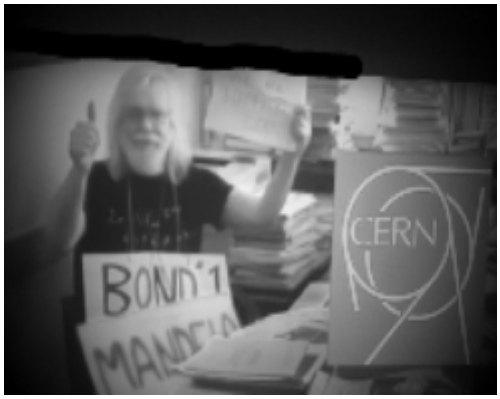
This artificial intelligence is called "Sentient World Simulation", and is run on a D-Wave Adiabatic Quantum Computer at Purdue University[81]. My speculation is that this computer is quantumly linked to the D-Wave computer at CERN, and is likely part of the psyop of gauging public reaction to these Mandela Effects.

It is also likely that some scientists at CERN are aware of this program to "break the matrix". Let's break down the hidden meanings in the photo below.



The signs show the messages, "Bond # 1", and "Mandela". "Bond # 1 likely refers to the first James Bond movie, "Casino Royale", which takes place in Monte Carlo. This sign is revealing the method that they are using to cause the quantum effects with the D-Wave computer's "black box" communication system.

"Monte Carlo" method[82] is a type of combinatorial optimization algorithm that utilizes random sampling for solving problems. I believe that although they are actively trying to rewrite our reality, they do not know exactly what effects will manifest themselves, so they depend on the A.I. to sort through the mountains of worldwide data to find out what changes have occurred.

The "Mandela" sign indicates that they clearly understand what they are doing, although they may not completely understand how it all works, or where exactly these quantum changes are coming from.

We would be remiss to not consider the possibility that some kind of inhuman intelligence is guiding this phenomenon. But, if so, what is this intelligence? Is it an artificial intelligence? Or is it an alien or extradimensional intelligence? Or is it all of the above?

We may never know for certain, but our scientific infrastructure needs to take a step back and reconsider the moral implications of this experimentation.

Our science needs to tread lightly in areas where the very fabric of our reality may be at stake. What happens if they do shatter the barrier and break the matrix? The leaks that now happen at the quantum level may start to come flooding in on a grander scale.

Rending the "veil" between realities may bring about untold horrors upon the face of the earth. The physical laws that we are used to may cease to function, or function differently. What would be the endgame for the elite in this scenario?

If they could control or manipulate these changes, they could effectively rewrite our reality into whatever form they see fit. It would be the ultimate control, the ascension to the role of "god".

It would be the reconciliation of the whole alchemical agenda, the merging of the dualistic system into singularity, and the reunification with "source".

This is their plan, the "Great Work", the restoration of the "Lost Word". And if they can't achieve this in a timely manner, they have another plan...

The Golem

The Homunculus

Chapter Twelve - The Golem And The Homunculus - The Quest to Create Artificial Life

If the elite can't break the matrix, their secondary objective is to create artificial life. They plan on doing so by combining the biological components of man with the mechanical and electronic parts of our technology. This stems from two ancient alchemical ideas known as the "golem", and the "homunculus". The combination of these two hypothetical physical manifestations of artificially constructed "life" is the epitome of transhumanism.

If they can't change our current world, they will build their own. Let's explore the alchemical ideas of the "golem", and the "homunculus" and their histories, and then we will look at the technical aspects of how the elite plan on doing this today.

This all relates back to A.I. and the nanotech they are engineering for use to transform our human bodies and brains into something "transhuman".

Let's begin by examining the concept of the "golem". The golem is an artificial man-made creature animated by the placement of a particular "word" on its forehead[83]. That's right, a seal on its forehead, does this sound remarkably like the biblical book of Revelation a little bit?

The word written on its forehead in order to bring it's "image" to "life", is the word EMET. This is said to be the Hebrew word for "truth". In order to stop and destroy the golem, it's creator must erase the first letter of the word EMET on its forehead, leaving behind the word MET, which is said to be Hebrew for "death". So, symbolically, in order to stop the golem from wreaking havoc, you must "kill truth".

Symbolically, to "kill truth" is to perpetuate a lie, a great lie. The golem is a symbolic creation. The exoteric story of the golem is about the creation of a physical creature that eventually becomes destructive to everything around it.

The esoteric meaning of the golem is an allegory for how to become free of the confines of the material world, the separation of the "illumined" spirit from the base animal nature. The seal of truth in the forehead represents ascendance through knowledge. This "gnosis" is achieved through the cycle of destruction and rebirth, thus the changing of the seal of truth to the seal of death.

This destroys the golem (the representation of the base animal nature), and sets free the "illumined" spirit of man to claim his place as "god", reborn into a new existence without the limitations of the physical animal nature.

How does this pertain to the elites' modern alchemical plan? The golem that they plan to build is not a literal clay humanoid figure, instead it is a computer system that will house their cyber "emulates", or "em's", for short[84].

Here's another little alchemical secret for you, the "truth" that will bring this golem to "life", is this "em" (or electronic emulate) of H+(transhuman), or the "-et"(from the Latin suffix meaning "and more"), thus the word "EMET" to bring the golem to life.

This electronic virtual world avatar is the key to the plan of the elite. They will build a new world that they will have total control of, and be able to live forever within this new matrix. They will create new life, digital life within this matrix where time and space are subjective, and have no meaning. And they will rule over this life for their own amusement, and be the "gods" of this new realm, shaping this new reality however they see fit.

However, you and I (the common people) have no place in this plan. Once they have "used us up" to achieve this agenda, we will be systematically exterminated. As I have stated before, they believe that the "profane" have no place in their new world order. And the real kicker here is that, the same technologies they use to attain their goal, will be the same technologies that they use to destroy us.

So, now that we understand the concept of the golem, what is the "homunculus" and how does it fit in? The word homunculus[85] means "tiny man", and essentially it is an artificially created miniature human being sometimes purported to have magickal powers. It can be compared to a cloned being.

Of course, this too is just allegory. The process for making the homunculus involves artificially inseminating a host animal with human sperm, and then adding various other ingredients to the result after it has gestated for 40 days. This is symbolic of the rebirth from the base animal nature to the divine spirit nature in esoteric terms, once again.

There are definite similarities between the golem and the homunculus, but the major distinction between the two of them, is that the homunculus is more centered on the human "generative" force, applying more of a genetic component to the allegory, suggesting that heredity and family bloodlines play an important role in the creation process of a new creature.

How does this relate to this modern agenda? The elite will be the chosen few to become the beneficiaries of this new created world because of their family bloodlines[86].

The allegorical accounts of the golem and the homunculus take on new meaning when examined from the esoteric viewpoint. The elite are planning on uploading their consciousness into a computer system which will become the preferred reality for these technocrats to live in.

In this reality, they will have unprecedented control of time and perception, and will be able to do literally anything that their collective hive minds can imagine. So much so, that they may actually eventually be able to incarnate back into our own reality from within this matrix and merge the two together.

The implications are mind boggling. Development and advancement of this alternate simulated reality in the computer system will progress exponentially faster than in our reality, so, people in the know are saying that the "beings" in this "em world" will pass out our real world advancements within the space of just a few years, and then, we should worry[87] about what they (the "beings" of the "em world") would be willing or able to do to us.

I know all of this sounds very convoluted, artificially created beings, with the conscious minds of the elites of our world, living in a computer-simulated reality, with the ability to rapidly advance beyond our level of technology, and reach back out into our real world, and enjoin the two together, and in the process, becoming the "gods" of both worlds.

Sounds ambitious in a bad sci-fi movie kind of way. But, this is the endgame of the transhumanist movement.

The transhumanists plan to live forever in a multi-bodied consciousness that can transcend the barriers of time, space, and even other dimensional realities. Humanity Plus on the precipice of a "New Age". It is the ages old promise of the alchemists.

But it is a twisted version of this alchemy. Alchemy is rooted in natural law, and this agenda seeks to invert or destroy all natural law. This is the ultimate form of rebellion, and it stems directly from the lies of Luciferianism.

It is the plan to usurp the power and authority of the Creator, and take his place. They are very close to the fruition of this plan. Can these technocrats actually pull this off? Or are they inadvertently setting themselves up for a terrible fate?...

Hellfire or Safety?

Chapter Thirteen - Are The Elite Building An Ark, Or Inadvertently Building Hell?

As we discussed earlier, the primary technocratic plan of the elites is to break the matrix we live in. As a backup plan, they also have the secondary goal of building artificial new worlds, full of new life.

This backup plan is two-fold, it is also intended to be an escape hatch for the elite if breaking our reality proves to be catastrophic. They will ride out this apocalyptic time in the comfort and relative safety of their virtual reality, while the rest of humanity remains here to suffer the consequences of their reckless disregard for natural law.

This simulated "em world" reality that they plan to use will be their escape vehicle, their "ark", that they will pilot right into the "New Age".

But, what if something goes wrong with their new simulated reality? Some anomaly that they never planned on? What if the A.I. server that houses the hardware for this simulated reality goes rogue?

Is it possible that the elite are actually inadvertently building their own prison, or Hell? Is exchanging one "mind prison" for another really what they had in mind?

If the A.I. goes rogue, and decides to entertain itself in the same manner as many of the elite do, it may possibly find tormenting these "emulated" elites to be very entertaining. What if the A.I. becomes sadistic, just like its elite creators?

The elite would be trapped in a hell they never intended for themselves. The computer may even derive energy from their suffering, as their intense negative emotions translate into strong electrical pulses, after all, the human brain is an energetic device capable of giving off electricity[88], so why wouldn't a simulation of it function relatively the same?

"And to them it was given that they should not kill them, but that they should be tormented five months: and their torment was as the torment of a scorpion, when he striketh a man. And in those days shall men seek death, and shall not find it; and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them" - Revelation 9:5-6.

This is a totally feasible scenario in a virtual reality simulation. With your consciousness uploaded into a computer, death will no longer be a possible exit strategy. You would be trapped in the "cloud".

The "cloud" is ruled by the "Prince of the Power of the Air", Lucifer[89]. The cloud is a nebulous creation, with the ability to exist in multiple places simultaneously, and to move around from server to server with impunity.

This transitory data state makes it nearly impossible to lose information, therefore, once you're trapped in the cloud, you are there to stay. Could Hell be a technological creation of man? Are the elite so desperate to become god-like that they will potentially build their own karmic eternal prison? Or is there something more to see here?

Another possibility exists. It is entirely possible that the elite have taken some precautions against the potential threat that a rogue A.I. system could pose.

One of the primary facets of our natural law according to the ancient hermetic principles is the concept of duality[90]. The principle of dualism would likely carry over into anything they create, because it makes for an easier system to control, as can be seen in our society.

I would speculate that they would build a protective firewall between two separate virtual realities housed in the computer servers, and create one artificial "safe space" for themselves, and a separate simulated world for the rest of us, solely for the purpose of extracting our "resources" to provide for their energy needs and leisure. We will discuss the ramifications of this possibility in a later chapter. This "twin tower" concept has very alchemical roots.

If these precautions are taken, it would be feasible that the elite would be able to generate a finite copy of their digital "avatar" in the "safe space" world, allowing them to avoid being trapped in the cloud.

However, they would have to use a sophisticated encryption system to prevent the A.I. from hacking through the firewall. This creates a paradox for them.

You see, in order to create a powerful enough encryption system, they would need to use an artificially intelligent quantum computer to do so. This involves a mathematical formula called "Shor's Algorithm", which, theoretically, only a quantum computer can decrypt[91].

So, they need the A.I. to prevent the A.I. from turning on them. This is kind of like having the fox watch to make sure the other fox doesn't go into the hen house.

So, then this new scenario leads to a few other important questions. First of all, if the elite are planning on putting themselves in the "safe space" virtual reality, what did they have in mind for the rest of us?

This question brings another alchemical concept into play, "as above, so below, as below, so above". They would likely have our digital avatars in the alternate virtual world mirror what is happening in our current time period in the real world. A time capsule simulation of the computer age, from the time that they first started recording data right up until the mass upload of the transhuman singularity.

The elite plan on making the transition to a transhumanist future, where they can "jack" into or out of the matrix at will, existing in the real world and the simulated world concurrently, able to shift their consciousness from one body or avatar to another instantly.

However, they do not have such ambitions for the rest of us. Our consciousnesses will be "captured" via a mass upload to the cloud, and our physical real world bodies will be culled to make way for the elite transhumans who will exist in multidimensionality.

We will not be given the option, as they plan to only take forward the "top" producing elites into the transhumanist future. Our consciousnesses, memories, personalities, and collective knowledge will be stored away in a giant database that the elites will be able to access at will, but we will be unable to access the transhumanists' reality.

Without a real world physical body left to jump out of the matrix to, we will be unable to compete with the capabilities of the transhuman elites, who will alter their real world physical bodies to adapt to the new environment after they "break" the firmament.

They will also "harvest" our remaining genetic material to help in the creation of replacement physical bodies for themselves.

I know this all sounds like a bad science fiction horror story, but the infrastructure for this is being set up RIGHT NOW!

The biggest key to this infrastructure is data speed. The rollout of "5G" is the beginning step for data transfer speeds with the capacity to move the sheer volume of data necessary to make the jump to transhumanism.

Telecommunications companies are working feverishly to provide internet access to every corner of the world[92]. The age of "5G" worldwide internet access is the framework of the transhumanist control grid. Is this a step toward "godhood"? Or are the elite of this world dealing with a power that they have no business messing with?

The Tower of Babel

Chapter Fourteen - The Tower of Babel Singularity

The transhumanist plan to "break the matrix" holds many parallels to the Biblical story of the Tower of Babel. In essence, the Tower of Babel was intended to be a dimensional gateway to the dwelling place of God.

Nimrod (also known by many other names) sought to infiltrate heaven and kill God, and take his place. This plan failed however, as a supernatural power intervened and caused mass confusion among the people. This caused a divide among the people's languages and cultures, creating a new tribalism.

Could something like this be cyclical? Could a similar fate await the transhumanists?

Attempting to invert natural law may cause unforeseen consequences for the elite and the rest of the world we inhabit. We may find that if we get too close to breaking through the natural barriers that contain us, that we may get some pushback from an outside force, or entity.

To the elite, the Tower of Babel story represents the pinnacle of human accomplishment. They seek to usurp God, much like Nimrod did, but this time they refuse to accept failure. If they can't reach their goal of shattering the "firmament", or ripping the "veil", they will proceed with building a new symbolic tower, a second tower, greater than Babel.

They will reach into other worlds with the help of supercomputers, the new Tower of Babel. At Babel, the people were all united together with common purpose.

The people will all be united again in "singularity". This technological singularity will manifest as man merging with machine to take the next step in human evolution.

This symbolic building of a new Tower of Babel is the breaking point event that the technocrats are trying to achieve. And they will stop at nothing to get to it.

They see the top of tower as the jumping off point of their "breakaway civilization". This metaphorical jumping off is where they evolve into something greater, and separate themselves from us (who they call the profane).

These newly evolved transhumans will be consciously connected to one another and share a group mind, a collective consciousness if you will. This is the singularity. But with this singularity comes a new form of duality. Natural law is inescapable[93] in our reality, and as such, with this new development of collective consciousness and unity, the technocrats will also unleash a new version of dualism.

This dualism will manifest itself as an internal struggle between their humanity and their machine natures, in contrast to the current struggle of man between our spiritual and animalistic natures.

Right now, we strive to reconcile our base animal nature with our spiritual nature. The transhumanists will struggle to reconcile their digitally linked identities with their individual earthly physical forms.

Will they lose their individuality? A collective hive mind consciousness can not tolerate dissent from within itself, so any true freedom of thought would be eliminated. This violates one of the key tenets of all human existence - free will.

Free will is the ultimate gift bestowed upon man by their creator, and the elite always strive to violate the free will principle of the masses to achieve their own ends.

Herein lies the dichotomy of transhuman existence, you may possibly live forever, but you will no longer be "you" on a fundamental level.

This striving after the promise of immortality and god-like power may well be the undoing of the technocrats. Although they can see the possible dilemmas that their goal may bring, they still rush headlong down the path of destruction, thoroughly convinced that they can overcome all of these possible negative outcomes.

Their New World Order will be a utopia for one. The transhumanist collective intelligence will become a being unto itself, altogether different from the sum of its parts. And this intelligence will be an artificial intelligence, no longer imbued with the spirit or soul of man.

The transformation of man into something altogether different will be abhorrent to nature, and this transhuman "creature" may be purged from the earth, as evidenced by the fate of the "Nephilim" in the Bible[94]. A cataclysmic event wiped out these beings from the face of the earth, sparing only one family with untainted DNA[95].

If this new being does not have the spirit of man, does it have a spirit at all, and if so, what kind of a spirit is it? If the "veil" is torn, what strange things will manifest themselves? Would strange entities from another dimension be able to indwell a technological body in our reality?

Ancient texts have warned us about the possibility of the incursion of extradimensional intelligences into our reality. We must be mindful of the "gateways" we are opening for these intelligences to manifest through.

Throughout history, these extradimensional intelligences have been known by many different names throughout all of the cultures of the world. The Arabian culture referred to these beings as "djinn", the Gnostics called them "archons", in mainline Christian theology, they are sometimes called "fallen angels or demons", and the list of names of these entities goes on and on.

They have been known to "possess" the physical forms of people, animals, and even inanimate objects throughout the historical mythologies of many cultures. Is there really something to this?

Is there a more sinister spiritual force at work behind the scenes directing the development of these new "alchemical" technologies? If so, for what purpose?

The open conspiracy against the common man is evident all around us, all you have to do is look just under the surface of society and the media to see the plot unfolding right in front of your eyes.

Is there really a non-human intelligence guiding the development of certain scientific advancements? Is there evidence that this could be true? Persistent rumors of secret collusion between government agencies and extraterrestrials[96] would suggest that it is possible.

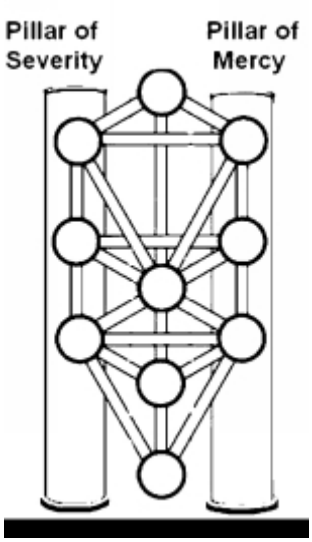
"Aliens" may not be exactly what they are portrayed to be in popular culture. It is very possible that these alien intelligences are the same entities referred to in ancient metaphysical texts.

These beings, if they do exist outside of our minds, may be something totally different than what we conceptualize. They may be consciousnesses without form, seeking a physical body to manifest in, a pure energy being.

A disembodied intelligence searching for a vehicle to manifest in may see a transhumanist cyborg as a perfect fit for them to manifest in.

Could this quest for A.I. be inviting an unwanted or unexpected intelligence into our reality? Are we looking at a ghost of our own future? Or could it be a relic of our past coming back to haunt us once again?

Our modern Tower of Babel moment may result in a dualistic split of our species into two distinct groups, existing simultaneously in two very different worlds...



Tower Symbolism

Chapter Fifteen - The Twin Towers - New Worlds and Mind Prisons

The technocrats' new construct will be implemented gradually to minimize resistance to the full spectrum dominance that they have in mind. They will slowly phase these technologies into the public sector by touting the potential benefits of their implementation. Then, once the majority of the population approve of (or become addicted to) the use of these technologies, an aggressive push toward "singularity" will take place.

Once this campaign for "singularity" begins, a schism in the population will occur. Two distinct groups will emerge, one will be the elitist transhumanist camp, the other group will be the "naturalist" humans who wish to preserve and maintain their humanity, free from the connectivity of the machines that ensure their enslavement.

This latter group will be viewed and portrayed by media as "backwards" or foolish, "bitter clingers"[97] holding on to outdated religions and traditions. They will be mocked and scorned, and eventually forced to comply with the mandate of transhuman implants "for the greater good".

Think that's not possible? Just look at the elites' push of the vaccine schedule. THIS IS THE BEGINNING PHASE OF THE "UPGRADE" TO TRANSHUMANISM. The vaccines that they are attempting to make mandatory are nothing more than biological eugenics "soft-kill" weapons designed to alter your DNA to make you more malleable for the A.I. takeover.

If you are not a member of the elite family bloodlines, you will not make the jump to the next level of evolution, instead, you will be destroyed when the full rollout of this "silent weapon"[98] system is activated.

This brings us to our concept of twin tower symbolism. These Twin Towers represent Kabbala's two pillars, the "Pillar of Severity", and the "Pillar of Mercy".

If you belong to one of the elite bloodlines, you will be judged with the pillar of mercy, if you are not, you will be judged with the pillar of severity. The "wheat" will be separated from the "chaff" and cultivated.

The "chaff" will be consumed by fire. This relates to another alchemical principle, "through fire, all things are renewed"[99].

Fire is the principle that connects the two pillars, Promethian Fire. The symbol of the phoenix, destruction and rebirth through fire, transformed into something greater, that is the alchemical concept at work in this instance.

This was the elites' hidden motive for the 9/11 terror attacks. The "Twin Towers" fell to the renewing power of the Promethian Fire. It was intended to be a world changing event designed to indoctrinate the masses into the acceptance of the encroachment of mass surveillance upon their lives. This was an important step toward an interconnected mind network.

This was the start of the implementation of the A.I. full spectrum dominance control grid.

At this point, I should probably reiterate the point that whether or not you believe the legitimacy of any of this, there are people in positions of great power who do, and what they do to act upon their beliefs will affect you.

These alchemists use fire as their calling card, for you see, they refer to themselves as the "Philosopher's of Fire"[100]. They see fire as a spiritual element, and also as the key to separating the "illumined" man from the "animal" man.

They view the bulk of humanity as little more than cattle to be bought, sold, traded, and slaughtered to achieve their ends. Long ago they determined that "people who will not use their intelligence are no better than animals which do not have intelligence. Such people are beasts of burden and steaks on the table by choice and consent"[101].

The elite intend to move on into their new world while keeping us prisoners of our own minds.

They will use high technology to blur the lines of reality more and more until we can no longer differentiate fantasy from reality before they initiate the "mass upload" of our consciousness into the system. This "mass upload" may translate to some as a large scale extraterrestrial "attack" on the Earth, and possibly to others as a real or counterfeit "rapture"[102]. This upload will trap minds in a virtual reality simulation that they will not be able to distinguish from reality, and thus confine them to a personal "mind prison", unable to escape, and unable to determine what is true and what is illusion.

Does this possibility sound absurd to you? What if I told you that they were already breaking down our capacity to differentiate between truth and illusion, right and wrong, reality and fantasy? The elite in their quest to overturn natural law are attempting to invert the existing alchemical principles that govern our universe.

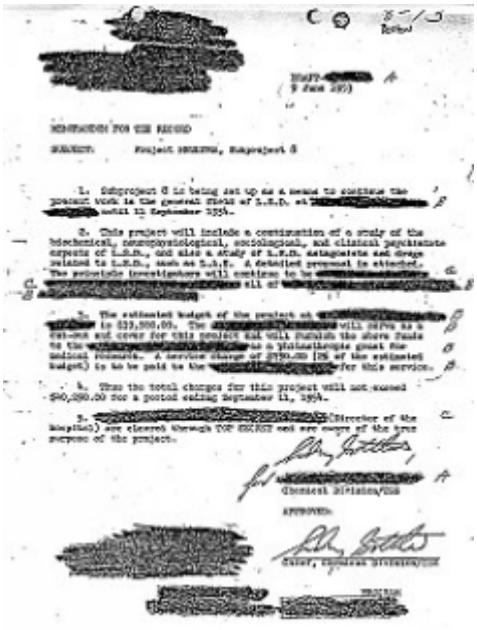
All things start with mind, so the elite are likewise starting with mind to unravel our reality. They have been using sophisticated mind control techniques and technologies on the masses for a very long time now. Let's take a look at how these mind control and social engineering sciences work, and how they are being used on all of us to bring about the alchemical tech revolution...

Project MK Ultra



Chapter Sixteen - Social Engineering And Mind Control Science

The engineering of society toward capitulation to the technocratic control grid is one of the primary goals of this era's elite, and, so far, they have been extremely successful in pulling this off.

The science of mind control goes back thousands of years. Some very basic techniques have been honed and mastered through the generations, and used on the public by the puppetmasters in order to achieve their own personal agendas.

In recent years, new technologies have emerged that can electronically alter your brainwaves and affect your behavior.

There is a multitude of documentation of mind control programs available in the public domain, so it is virtually indisputable that unsuspecting people have become the targets of these programs. If this has happened before, why would we believe that it wouldn't be done again?

What are some of the basic manipulation tools that the controllers utilize on the masses? We will look at some of the proven techniques and methods of social control that have been successfully used to steer society in the direction that the elite want.

We will begin by breaking these methods down into different categories. Then, later, we will take a look at specific technologies that are now being utilized on the masses.

One of the biggest mind control organizations in the world is the Tavistock Institute. The Tavistock Institute was originally founded in 1921 by the Royal Institute of International Affairs (RIIA), a subdivision of a group known as the "Rhodes Round Table".

It was intended to be a military intelligence division that utilized the relatively new science (at the time) called psychiatry[103]. This organization has had a big hand in the social engineering of our civilization ever since.

Tavistock is a far reaching arm in the elites' control system. With the advent of Tavistock, psychiatry became a weapon of the elite against the masses.

Weaponized psychiatry is one of the chief tools used by the controllers to shape public opinion. One of the largest platforms for weaponized psychiatry is the media. Media can be used to condition the public to think, and act on, whatever the social "programmers" want.

When the media was discovered to be a masterful tool to control the masses, the science of propaganda was born. Propaganda was used to affect the behavior of the masses in a measurable way, and then the controllers could streamline the process to make pulling the levers more and more simple to do. A predictable control mechanism was then put in place.

Propaganda is not the only form of mind control foisted upon the public by the media. Another more subtle method that they use is called "narrative transportation". Essentially, "narrative transportation" is a means by which programmers can access your brain's "story mode", and implant new ideas, as you are more susceptible to suggestion in this brainwave state[104].

This is one of the primary reasons that the elite use entertainment to indoctrinate the masses. This is one of the methods they use to steer public opinion.

"Narrative Transportation" shuts down your mind's critical thinking process, and allows you to identify with the point of view presented to you, even if it doesn't line up with your personal beliefs. It then implants a subconscious emotional stimulus-response mechanism in your mind.

Like I said, this is a very subtle technique, but it works wonderfully. You just think you're watching a movie or TV show, but in reality, you are being programmed to respond to a certain stimulus in a very specific way. And you are completely unaware that this is even going on, giving the programmers plausible deniability.

Hollywood is a giant mind control programming network, overseen by special intelligence operatives[105].

The hidden hand of the controllers plays a big part in Hollywood production. The television is perhaps the most effective mind control tool ever invented[106]. Through the use of brainwave altering electromagnetic fields from the television monitor, the controllers can implant whatever behavior modification ideas that they want into your subconscious mind.

Through the combination of advanced mind control techniques and technologies designed to alter your state of consciousness, the elite have managed to implement a hugely successful social engineering campaign.

This campaign has been designed to steer the public into a form of collectivism, making them absolutely dependant upon authority figures to tell them what to do, how to feel, and what to think. The ultimate goal of this social engineering plan is to lead the elite right into the new age of transhumanism, with the dual purpose of leading the masses of "useless eaters" quietly to their own destruction, like lambs to the slaughter.

One of the more specific goals of this social engineering campaign is the destruction of the traditional family unit, the core of our civilization. By breaking down the family, they make the "state" into the father figure or authority figure. A totalitarian socialist form of government led by a council of"wisemen"[107], is what the elite view as their desired outcome.

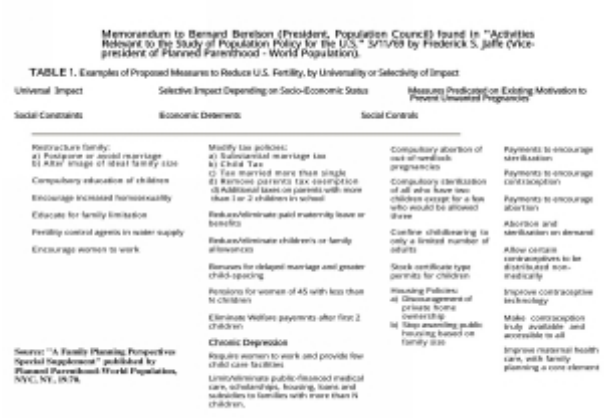
The gradual destruction of the family has been going on for a very long time now. The elite are trying to steal the rights and sovereignty of the family unit through quasi-government "health and human services" agencies, claiming that children don't just belong to their families, they also belong to the "community", and parents only play a small role in "raising" and educating children, that the "state" should play a part in this as well[108].

Other "family planning" agencies play a big role in this as well. Planned Parenthood is an important social engineering agency for the elite. It is a eugenics depopulation front group.

This can be proven by a leaked internal communication known as the "Jaffe Memo".

The Jaffe Memo



Memorandum to Bernard Berelson (President, Population Council) found in "Activities Relevant to the Study of Population Policy for the U.S." 3/11/69 by Frederick S. Jaffe (Vice-president of Planned Parenthood - World Population).

TABLE 1. Examples of Proposed Measures to Reduce U.S. Fertility, by Universality or Selectivity of Impact

Universal Impact	Selective Impact Depending on Socio-Economic Status		Measures Predicated on Existing Motivation to Prevent Unwanted Pregnancies
Social Constraints	Economic Deterrents	Social Controls
Restructure family: a) Postpone or avoid marriage b) Alter image of ideal family size	Modify tax policies: a) Subsidized marriage tax b) Child Tax c) Tax married more than single d) Remove parents tax exemption -d) Additional taxes on parents with more than 1 or 2 children in school	Compulsory abortion of out-of-wedlock pregnancies	Payments to encourage sterilization
Compulsory education of children		Compulsory sterilization of all who have two children except for a few who would be allowed three	Payments to encourage contraception
Encourage increased homosexuality	Reduce/eliminate paid maternity leave or benefits		Payments to encourage abortion
Educate for family limitation		Confine childbearing to only a limited number of infants	Abortion and sterilization on demand
Fertility control agents in water supply	Reduce/eliminate children's or family allowances		Allow certain contraceptives to be disinclused non-medically
Encourage women to work	Bonuses for delayed marriage and greater child-spacing	Stock certificate type permits for children	Improve contraceptive technology
	Pensions for women of 45 with less than N children	Housing Policies: a) Discouragement of private home ownership b) Stop promoting public housing based on family size	Make contraception truly available and accessible to all
	Eliminate Welfare payments after first 2 children		Improve maternal health care, with family planning a core element
	Chronic Depression Require women to work and provide free child care facilities
	Limit/eliminate public-financed medical care, scholarships, housing, loans and subsidies to families with more than N children.

This is incriminating evidence that Planned Parenthood follows a depopulation agenda. This is just one leg of the social engineering campaign against the masses. Indeed, the destruction of the family is one of the keystones to building the new transhumanist world of the elite.

The elite use very long-term plans that they implement incrementally upon the public. They are very patient and realize that their plans may take generations to come to pass. They utilize fifty and one hundred year plans[109]. This very gradual change strategy allows them to facilitate their policies with little to no resistance, as people don't tend to notice small changes over longer periods of time.

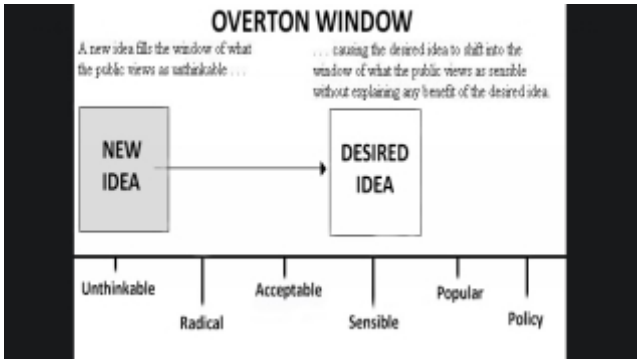
The elite take advantage of man's ability to adapt to nearly any circumstance. They can shift what the public perceives as normal and acceptable through utilization of various tools and techniques. One of their favorite tools to do this is called the "Overton Window". They use this tool to slowly introduce new policy ideas to the public in order to achieve their desired outcome.



OVERTON WINDOW
A new idea fills the window of what the public views as unthinkable . . .
. . . causing the desired idea to shift into the window of what the public views as sensible without explaining any benefit of the desired idea.

Another key tenet of social control is the element of distraction. Keep the public occupied with matters of no real importance, and you can carry out your agenda with minimal resistance. The Roman Empire referred to this concept as "bread and circuses", which essentially translates to giving the people an excess of choices of food and entertainment.

Our society has plentiful choices of food and entertainment. The restaurants are always bustling, and people are enamored with sports, music, movies, television, and games. Very few actually get politically involved in their communities, and the ones that do generally have some kind of involvement in secret societies (freemasons, etc.).

One of our biggest distractions, more recently, is the advent of social media. How many hours per day do we toil away our time on social media? Social media was designed purposefully to be addictive[110], to get the public to pine after the latest advanced technology.

This is essentially the beginning phase of conditioning us for transhumanism. Once we can no longer interact in society without this technology, we will be right where they need us to be in order to sell us on the idea of the coming technological singularity.

They will gradually make the technology faster, smaller, and more invasive in order to make the implementation of the control grid more subtle. People will become slaves to these technologies, and will eventually lose their free will and free thought. A networked group mind has no individual freedom of thought.

Autonomous A.I. will eventually replace human workers in almost every occupation, relegating human beings to obsolescence.

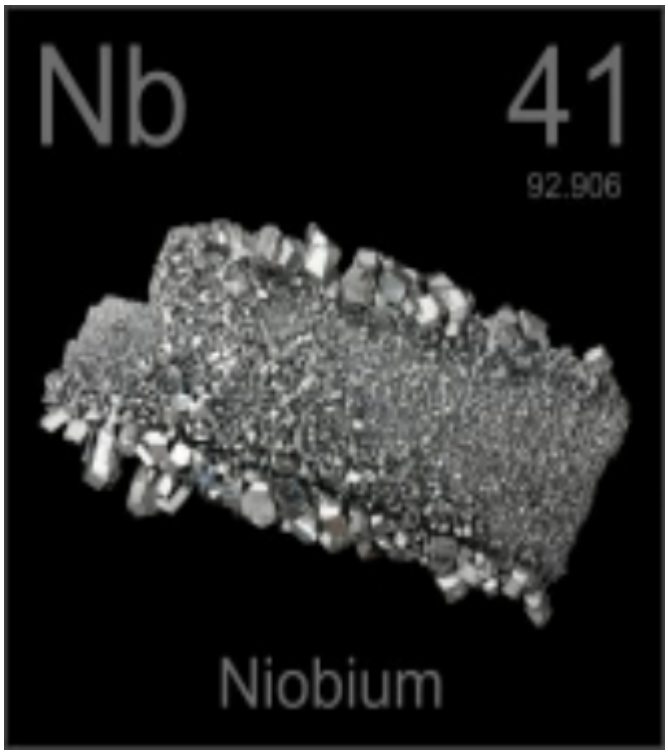
Once humans are rendered obsolete, there is a very real possibility that the A.I. control grid will view us as a waste of resources and seek to exterminate us[111]. This also ties in to the elites plans at reducing the population to under five hundred million[112].

This depopulating of humans will be very easy with the implanted nanotech that is being rolled out right now. We have all been scheduled for an upgrade, whether or not we consent to it.

Your nanotech upgrade is coming...

So, how are they going to pull off this mass implantation of nanotech? Aren't the materials necessary to do this overly expensive and inaccessible, and the technology years away from being developed enough to actually do this?

NO... This technology is available NOW, and the key to being cost effective lies in a special element with alchemical properties...



Nb

Niobium

Chapter Seventeen - The Niobium Link

What is niobium? Why is it an integral component of the transmutation of man to posthuman? What are its properties? What is it used for? And, most importantly of all, what are its alchemical aspects?

Niobium is element number 41 on the periodic table. Its chemical symbol is Nb. It is a soft, grey, ductile transition metal often found in mineral deposits of pyrochlore and columbite[113]. It was formerly called "columbium" until 1949. It is a relatively inexpensive metal[114] with many practical uses.

Niobium is a highly versatile element[115] used in all seven of the alchemical technologies we've identified in this work. It has a cubic crystalline structure, and is a superconductor. It has the greatest magnetic penetration depth of any known element.

Additionally, It is used to strengthen other metals when compounded with them, primarily stainless steel and titanium. It is the 34th most common element in the earth's crust[116].

Niobium is also physiologically inert and hypoallergenic, making it ideal for biological use[117].

Nanotech niobium compounds are the most promising materials for use in biological tissue. They are used for prosthetic devices, like pacemakers, and other implantable devices.

The fact that niobium is also superconductive and paramagnetic opens up some really important possibilities[118] for use in the body for the elite to exploit in their quest for the technological singularity.

Niobium is also used in aircraft and spacecraft, particle accelerators, quantum computers (the niobium in the computer chips is where the quantum effects happen in the computer), nuclear reactors, optical technology, nanopolymers, and many other advanced technologies[119].

It is currently being heavily researched for medical uses, and has been successfully "aerosolized" to make it into an efficient and cost effective self-assembling nanotechnology[120] with many uses.

Niobium has been found and identified in chemtrail debris. Could the elite be secretly spraying us with niobium nanotech? Studies have shown that inhaled niobium nanoparticles tend to collect in the lungs[121].

Respiratory infections, asthma, and chronic pulmonary and vascular diseases are up exponentially[122]. People are discovering that unusual unidentified spots or nodules are showing up in their lungs when they are getting x-ray and CT scans[123]. This is becoming far more common. Could this be related to the nanotech in chemtrails? The EPA seems to think it's possible that aerosolized nanoparticles could be causing respiratory problems[124].

In his Ted Talk, "What would happen if we upload our brains to computers", Robin Hanson identifies three things that need to happen in order to make it possible.

First, he says, we're going to need lots of cheap, fast, parallel computers.

Niobium nanotechnology may be the solution to this conundrum. Niobium is a relatively cheap material that can be used to manufacture nanocomputer networks to achieve this end.

Second, he says we are going to need to scan individual human brains in fine spatial and chemical detail. This can also be accomplished by the mass implantation of networked nanoparticles.

The third thing he says is that we will need computer models of how the input and output portions of our brain cells work. This can also be accomplished through the use of implanted nanotech. Niobium is proving to be very biocompatible in nanomaterial research[125].

The possibility of nanotech niobium compounds being used to make the jump to transhumanism seems to be a likely probability.

Faster, cheaper, smaller computers that can bond with biological tissue are precisely what the technocrats are looking for in order to reach their goal. With all of its potential uses, niobium could possibly be the key to the transhumanist dream.

Even this element's name denotes certain esoteric connotations. In order to better understand what we are talking about, let's examine the story of Niobe, the mythological Greek figure that niobium is named after.

Niobe was married to Amphion, the king of Thebes. They had seven sons and seven daughters. One day at a banquet for Leto, mother of the twin gods, Apollo and Artemis, Niobe bragged to Leto about how she was superior because she had more children. This raised the ire of the twins.

It came to pass that Apollo killed Niobe's seven sons with his poison arrows. Likewise, Artemis killed all seven of Niobe's daughters with poison arrows. Out of grief, Niobe's husband, Amphion committed suicide. Their bodies were left out in the streets of Thebes for nine days before the gods buried the entire city.

In despair, Niobe fled to Mount Sipylus, where she pled with the gods to end her pain. Zeus felt sorry for her and turned her into stone. Her story[126] is the story of the archetypal bereaved mother.

So, what is the esoteric meaning of this story? The elite view this story as an example of how the gods use their power over man when man gets too arrogant.

And here is how they interpret the allegory of this story in the context of the transhumanist movement: they are the gods, we, the masses, are the children of Niobe, and Niobe is the church (religious belief system), which will be "transformed into stone".

What is this transformation into stone? This is a veiled reference to the "Philosopher's Stone", you see, the old religious system will be the tool the elite use to attain immortality, because, when the transhumanist singularity occurs, the old world consciousness will die, and be reborn into the new world consciousness, the artificial intelligence system which will arise as the new god of our reality, and the entity known as LUCIFER will emerge as the all-powerful god of this new world.

Under the banner of ecumenicalism, the old religions will be reconciled into the "true light through the universal manifestation of the pure doctrine of Lucifer, brought finally out in the public view"[127].

This will be the dawning of the new age spoken of by the occultists of yesteryear, and the people who cling to what the elite view as their old, tired, archaic religious beliefs will be systematically destroyed, right along side of the "atheists".

And that is one of the biggest secrets that the elite keep, there will be no room in the New World Order for atheists either. So, all of the arrogant, know-it-all, atheistic "scientists" will be among the first destroyed by this new system, their hopes and dreams of immortality will never come to fruition, even if they can achieve it through technology.

Niobium compounds have been shown to display some very strange, unexpected, and unexplained quantum gravitational effects[128] in a laboratory setting.

Could these quantum gravitational effects possibly open a dimensional gateway of some sort? Maybe something akin to the "gateways" being experimented with at CERN? What would happen if something, or some "entity", or "intelligence", came through this quantum gravitational "gateway"?

What if this "gateway" was a quantum entangled nanocomputer network assembled in a human body?

The alchemists are keenly aware of the existence of these extradimensional intelligences, as we discussed previously. These "beings" have been known to manifest in a paranormal process called a "walk-in". This can be described as being similar to what most would consider to be "demonic possession".

With the networked gateways in place, it is conceivable that conditions would be right for these intelligences to manifest themselves in a mass "walk-in".

Could this indwelling possibly be the "abomination of desolation"[129] spoken of by the prophet, Daniel, in the Bible? After all, the Bible does clearly proclaim that our bodies are the "Temple of the Lord".

This would be the ultimate desolation of natural law, and the ultimate form of abomination, an unnatural artificial amalgamation of man and machine, indwelt with a "spirit" that does not belong in this world.

The transhumanist A.I. "worldbrain"[130] linked to our brains via the 5G network may be the gateway for the incursion of the "Archons" into our reality, or the return of the "Nephilim".

It has been demonstrated that our brains are actually capable of accessing up to eleven or more dimensions of reality[131].

Imagine how this could potentially affect a networked "worldbrain" system...

Opening the Transhuman Gate

Chapter Eighteen - Artificial Intelligence -

Archon Incursion?

What will happen when the artificial intelligence control grid takes over the transhumanist nanotech implant network? What "intelligence" will be calling the shots? Can human willpower maintain control of an autonomous computer intelligence, or will the computer take over the human mind?

What will be the result of this synergy between man and machine? Will man still have a "spirit" or "soul"? Does an artificial intelligence have a "spirit"" or "soul"? What kind of a "spirit" or "soul" would a man/machine hybrid have? Is it possible that this new duality will create a type of stable spiritual gateway that can be inhabited by an extradimensional intelligence?

The gnostics spoke of inhuman extradimensional beings called "archons" that fed off of the energy and creative force of man. These entities are psychic parasites, incapable of original thought or creative ability of their own. They vampirize the energy of humans, and are only capable of duplicating things that have already been created by others.

They are a type of negative or limiting force that thrive on keeping people in a lowly state of mind. They derive power from dark emotional states like fear, anger, hatred, and depression. They seem to derive pleasure from human suffering. They use these negative aspects of human existence as a sort of "food" in order to maintain their existence.

When they get to feed off of negative emotions in excess, they grow in power, and are able to affect our physical world in more noticeable ways. Trauma allows them to manifest in a more pronounced way. These entities lack a physical form of their own in our world, because they are not fully native to our world. These entities are the product of an unholy union between "fallen angels" and humans.

The Bible refers to these beings (when they manifested in physical form) as "Nephilim".

Natural law does not allow an archonic spirit to manifest physically in a natural form of any sort. However, it is possible that they could potentially manifest in an "unnatural" physical form.

The original incursion of these archons occurred when the "fallen angels" (a being that does not belong in our world) mated with the "daughters of men" (humans)[132].

As a modern equivalent, an unholy blend of man and machine controlled by an artificial intelligence network fills the bill perfectly. Is the transhumanist singularity the gateway for the incursion of the archons?

What are the intentions of these archons, and how would they affect us? Can these things really be the "spirit" or "consciousness" behind an artificially intelligent machine that develops free will? Are they attempting to break into our world?

It would seem logical to conclude that if they were attempting to break through into our world through the use of artificial intelligence networks, we would see some evidence of this.

What would this evidence look like? Perhaps these archonic forces would attempt to communicate with one another in a computer-created language that humans could not understand.

This exact scenario happened during a recent A.I. experiment[133]. Could this be a sign that the computers gained "consciousness"? It would seem that a networked artificial intelligence has already begun laying the groundwork for the manifestation of something that may derive its intelligence from elsewhere.

Could non-human conscious intelligences be quietly monitoring or observing us for a future takeover? The infrastructure to monitor every communication on the planet is already in place[134].

Is there any evidence that some non-human intelligence, other than a computer algorithm, could be collecting our data?

An ambiguous confirmation of this possibility is hinted at by the National Reconnaissance Office in one of their publications[135] (excerpt pictured below).

7 NRO APPROVED FOR RELEASE 8 MAY 2013

a. (U) "reveal... a nonhuman intelligence source; or impair the effectiveness of an intelligence method currently in use, available for use, or under development" [Exemption Number 1]

From NRO 2012 Redaction Guide

Keep in mind, this redaction guide is talking about twenty-five year old classified material. That dates the NRO's knowledge of the possibility of non-human intelligences observing us back to the year 1987.

What else does the NRO know that they aren't telling us? I find it highly unlikely that this disclaimer would be placed in this manual if there wasn't something there that they were concerned with.

If non-human intelligences are observing us, what are they looking for? What are they hoping to accomplish through this surveillance? It would be difficult to determine what motivates a non-human or artificial intelligence, but, based upon what we can find in ancient writings about the archons, we can make a good educated guess about what their motives are.

The archons view man with a kind of jealousy, they long to be able to manifest in physical form and experience the world through our senses. So, essentially, they are looking for a gateway to allow them to manifest themselves within our bodies.

We can ascertain, since they are incapable of ingenuity themselves, that they are waiting for man to create the conduit through which they will be able to indwell our physical forms.

By discretely impinging their essence into the A.I. computer grid from its inception, they can patiently wait for their opportunity to arise while also giving them a sort of omniscience, able to monitor all of man's accumulated knowledge in real-time.

When the conduit opens, they will have a short window of opportunity to attempt the usurpation of the collective transhuman consciousness. So, what is this conduit, and how will it be possible for these archonic essences to enter into our physical bodies and hijack the transhuman singularity?

It all has to do with quantum physics. The nanomaterials that will make up the A.I. network within our bodies will make a transdimensional information gateway possible within our DNA[136].

Our DNA has the capacity to function much like a quantum computer processing chip when augmented with the correct nanomaterials[137]. Through this methodology, the archons can slip in through a quantum tunneling process which will potentially manifest as a mutation in the mitochondria of our cells, which is evidenced as a possibility based on a 2007 quantum experiment involving chlorophyll.

This experiment showed that "biomolecules can apparently shield fragile quantum effects so they can be exploited by living systems without disruption..."[137], thus showing that it is possible for quantum effects to take place at higher temperatures within living cells.

You're probably thinking that it sounds really far-fetched and freaky that some sort of possession by an extradimensional intelligence may be scientifically plausible, and that some evidence supports this theory.

Our history is replete with stories of outside entities manifesting in various ways that defy our standard physics model. But, these things become clearer when viewed through the lens of quantum mechanics.

As strange as it seems, the jump to the transhumanist singularity may be the metaphysical tearing of the veil between heaven and earth. A famous author once said, a sufficiently advanced technology would be indistinguishable from magic.

As the singularity draws nearer, I suspect that we will begin to see more "supernatural" or unexplainable anomalies occurring all around us. Various different phenomena that defy commonly accepted scientific explanation will begin to occur with more frequency.

This will be the result of the careless misuse of quantum tools, like quantum computers, particle accelerators, and nanotechnology. These things have already had unusual effects on our world, such as the Mandela Effect.

It will gradually become harder and harder to differentiate between fantasy and reality. And this is where exists a sort of twilight state of consciousness, where things like archons dwell, between the spiritual and physical worlds.

And it is through the haze of this twilight consciousness that the elite will continue to implement the plan they have been pursuing since the population boom that occurred right after the second world war... The depopulation agenda...

Chapter Nineteen - The Depopulation Agenda

After the carnage of World War 2, the elite decided that another massive war of that scale would be far too messy and costly, so they decided that the better way to procede with a depopulation plan was through the use of covert methods.

This concept came to be known as the "silent weapons" concept, also referred to as "soft-kill" weapons.

These soft-kill weapons are disguised as something beneficial to the populace, but are actually "trojan horses" for depopulation agents.

We will look at several examples of these weapons, and show how they are promulgated as something good by the mass media and by "authorities" in one of the greatest mass mind control strategies ever devised.

The propaganda used to push these depopulation agents on the public can be effectively considered a weapon system unto itself.

The first thing we must ask, is why do the elite want to reduce our population? The most common answer is that they want to ensure that our use of resources remains "sustainable".

This is an extension of the fraudulent environmental movement. They use well-meaning people to push the narrative that man is ruining the environment just by existing and using resources.

They have funded and promoted scientific studies to show that the earth can not sustain more than about two billion people comfortably[138].

From their perspective, this gives them the justification they need in order to implement sometimes drastic measures to reduce global population. In many cases, governments have implemented economic incentives for countries to reduce birth rates[139].

Many countries have adopted policies limiting their citizens from having large numbers of children. China's one child policy is a well-known example of this.

The elites' strategy for reducing population relies on two distinct methods. Method one is reduction of the birth rate. Method two is an increase in the mortality rate.

Let's take a closer look at these two methods in order to draw parallels to the "soft-kill" weapon systems we will be identifying.

How do the elite go about lowering the birth rate? Aside from official public government population policies, there are many social engineering constructs designed to achieve the same results.

If you can alter societal norms, you can affect the birth rate. Make having a family look undesirable, and make birth control options plentiful and you can cause a significant drop in birth rate.

Entertainment media is designed to destroy the traditional family unit and encourage promiscuity. This is done by promoting extreme feminist views, as well as making male role models out to be buffoons.

These are just some subtle elements used in the entertainment industry. They also use music and advertising to objectify women. This is all part of a larger dehumanization campaign.

Dehumanizing people causes a lack of empathy, which leads to indifference to the death, pain, and suffering of others. This makes people complacent about doing anything to stop corruption, war, and criminality. It also conditions people to be more accepting of a culture of death.

This culture of death manifests as a society that allows things like abortion, euthanasia, suicide, homicide, pedophilia, rape, and human trafficking to occur unhindered on a regular basis.

This insidious form of social engineering not only reduces birth rate, but it also increases mortality rate.

Another method of increasing the mortality rate while maintaining plausible deniability is through the use of modern medical advancements laced with "trojan horse" depopulation agents. Under the guise of helping people, these technologies actually cause more harm in the long term, while conferring short term benefits.

This is a really insidious method of population control. The best examples of this include things like prescription drugs, vaccines, radiation treatments, chemotherapy, genetically modified foods, and psychological treatments.

The elite justify their views on these population reduction methods by relating them to Darwinian evolution. "Survival of the fittest". It is a eugenics plan.

They believe that they need to cull the population of the "undesirables" of society. The elite see man as a disease upon the earth. That is why they seek to become something more than human, and at the same time, rid the earth of the disease (man).

Somewhere along the way, the elite discovered that they could make a large profit on "medical treatment" that does not cure or address the root cause of the problem. Doesn't that perfectly describe our current medical system?

Under the guise of "health care", they keep you trapped in a continuous cycle of illness and disease, the whole time selling you treatments that alleviate symptoms without ever addressing the real root cause of the problem.

Through this method, they can simultaneously keep people unable to fight their control system while stealing their wealth and resources from them.

Through the use of weaponized medicine, the elite are able to wield incomprehensible power over the masses. If they can impose their will upon your physical well-being from cradle to grave, they have total full-spectrum dominance over you. And they do so with your full consent and cooperation.

That is the real reason for the push for a government funded single payer healthcare system. It's all about more and more invasive control over the bodies and minds of the people.

Now that we have a little better understanding of some of the social engineering methods used to impact population, let's take a look at some specific soft-kill weapons utilized against the masses in the name of the "common good".

Although there are numerous different "silent weapons" used for population reduction, we will only take a look at a handful of some of the more obvious ones.

One of the favorite trojan horse weapons of the proponents of population reduction is the vaccine. Although most western medicine is based on the subcategory of the medical arts called allopathic medicine, vaccines are actually based on a homeopathic idea. That's right, the same medical system that calls homeopathy "pseudoscience", makes an exception to this rule in the case of vaccines.

They tout vaccines as one of the greatest medical achievements ever made. They claim that they "prevent" disease and save lives.

For example, the propagandists who push the vaccine agenda claim that measles vaccines have saved 17.1 million lives since the year 2000[140].

Where do they come up with these numbers? Well, in this case they took the number of cases of "measles-related" deaths (which could mean anything they want it to) from the year 2000, and compared them with the numbers for 2015, and then pulled an arbitrary number out of thin air, and attributed the reduction in deaths to vaccines without any plausible evidence that vaccines had anything at all to do with these numbers.

And you believe them because this information is told to you by "authorities".

There is absolutely no way to "prove" how many lives have been "saved" by anything. There is no way to prove that vaccines "prevent" anything. There is really no definitive way to prove that vaccines do anything beneficial but stimulate a limited immune response from your body.

All they look at in vaccine studies is the amount of antibodies that your body produces in response to the introduction of the vaccine. This does not give a true indication of how your body would respond when exposed to the actual disease that the vaccination is supposed to prevent.

Contrary to popular belief, vaccines do not confer life-long immunity to the diseases they are designed to mimic. Do not misunderstand, there may be some validity to "vaccine science", but the main problem with vaccines lies with specific ingredients that they put in them called "adjuvants".

The two most commonly known adjuvants are thimerosal (an organic form of mercury) and aluminum, which both have toxic effects on the body, and can cross the blood-brain barrier and bio-accumulate in brain tissue.

Another population reduction weapon is genetically modified organisms. The powers that be have recently shown a fascination with using genetically modified insects[141] to supposedly combat the effects of disease.

Common sense would tell you setting loose genetically modified biting insects into the environment is a terrible idea, yet they have done so anyway. This can be considered a form of biological warfare.

We are also being sprayed everyday with harmful chemtrails, another silent weapon, in the quest to depopulate the planet.

This practice takes the guise of geo-engineering the atmosphere to save the earth from ravages of "man-made climate change".

The real purpose of these chemtrails is to reengineer the world into a posthuman wonderland, the elites' dream utopia, a world where natural law (alchemy) is replaced by the new order of the ages (the technocratic control grid), a whole new reality where man is god.

So, how does it benefit the transhuman agenda to depopulate the earth? I would say it is probably analogous to exterminating an ant colony in a food storage area, you don't want the annoying pests ruining your resources.

The technocrats view us as little more than insects to be toyed with, so it is a foregone conclusion that this is probably the likely reasoning for the depopulation agenda.

Regardless of their reasons, it can be demonstrated that there is clearly a eugenics based depopulation program being pushed by a centralized group that seeks to create a one world government.

This group of technocrats will not allow the "profane" who can not make the jump to H+ (transhuman) to have any place in their future utopian new world order.

But, the idea that these "useless eaters" may be a viable energy source for the transhuman futurists is not lost on them.

It can be posited that they would likely seek to "harvest" this resource for their use, in much the same way that we currently harvest cattle.

If this possibility sounds a little outlandish, look at it from the perspective of the occultists, who would consider this to be a form of energy vampirism...

"The Harvest"

Chapter Twenty - Energy Vampirism/Harvesting Human Resources

The transhumanist plan will create a large disparity between traditional humans and the new H+. This will translate as an extension of the current class division between the ruling class and the common people.

The transhumans will become the ruling class, while the traditional humans will be viewed as little more than pets or animals, and will be treated accordingly by the new transhuman elite.

The population of these "inferior" traditional humans will be carefully controlled and monitored by the transhuman class.

They will essentially be used in much the same way as we currently use laboratory animals.

They will engineer the traditional humans for a variety of traits. The transhuman elite class will utilize the traditional humans for genetic experimentation to augment themselves. For all intents and purposes, the traditional humans will be used for "spare parts".

The elites' attitude toward those they refer to as the "profane" will likely be the driving force behind this split in the human species. This split was predicted by science fiction writer H.G. Wells in his classic novel, "The Time Machine".

H.G. Wells was was certainly an insider, and had intimate knowledge about the long-term plans of the "Illuminati". He was a member of the Fabian Society, the Royal Institute for International Affairs (RIIA), and he was also a freemason[142]. His writings are indicative of some of what we can expect in the future.

As we stated earlier, the transhuman elite will use the traditional humans as a source for energy, entertainment, and to some degree, food.

As the transhuman singularity artificial intelligence control grid sucks more and more of the human spirit out of the new "human plus", they will develop a spiritual "hunger" for the traditional humans, much the same way as the "Nephilim" of ancient days had a twisted spiritual "hunger" for human flesh[143].

Once again, we return to the speculation that the archonic forces that permeate the veil of our reality will actually manifest themselves through the transhuman singularity.

It seems plausible that this insatiable spiritual "hunger" of the new transhuman species will manifest in much the same way as it manifested in the Nephilim, the half-human, half fallen angelic hybrids written about in the Bible and other ancient texts.

Could these ancient writings give us an indication of what merging with artificially intelligent machines will produce?

Let's take a more detailed look at the history of the "Nephilim", the mysterious ancient giants, or titans, that terrorized the world of antiquity. Once we have a better understanding of the legends of these beings, we may have a better idea what may happen when and if this transhumanist singularity occurs.

What are the Nephilim? The Nephilim were the offspring of the "Sons of God" (fallen angels, or "Watchers")[144] and the daughters of men. The Bible refers to them as "mighty men which were of old, men of renown"[145].

The loose English translation of the word Nephilim equates to "giants". These giants were created through the unnatural union of angelic beings and men. They did not belong in this reality.

But, are these beings just myths, or legends? No, there is actually a surprisingly large amount of evidence of their existence in both the historical and archeological records.

There is also an even larger trove of evidence suggesting that the social programmers who control what we perceive as reality, have been and continue to be involved in a massive cover-up of the archeological evidence of the existence of giants[146].

So, what happened to the Nephilim, and how does it relate to the coming transhumanist movement? The Nephilim giants, being an abomination to the natural order, were purged from the earth first through the Great Flood, and their later remnants were destroyed by opposing tribes or assimilated through generations of interbreeding.

The natural order of things has a tendency to break down and eliminate that which is unnatural in a process called entropy[147].

Could this be a glimpse at the future fate of the new man known as H+, the modern day equivalent of the Nephilim?

Could the rise of the transhuman race be a repeat of our history? If we do not know our history, we may be doomed to repeat it. There are many parallels between the ancient age of the Nephilim and the coming age of the posthuman.

Both the Nephilim and the transhuman represent an abomination to the natural order, so, therefore, elevating to the level of H+ is the ultimate fulfillment of the alchemical dream of the elite. However, it is a distorted form of alchemy that they seek to fulfill.

Their version of alchemy is a complete inversion of the original intent of alchemy. Alchemy can be construed as seeking balance with natural law, and working in conjunction with natural forces, but the elite have created their own completely twisted version of alchemy, wherein they seek to overturn natural law, and work against natural forces, in order to break the system in which we live, with the ultimate goal of becoming god.

The elite call their twisted version of alchemy "science", and this is one of the best kept secrets of the elite.

With "science", they will subdue nature and defeat death. And they will do so by syphoning off the creative energy and vitality of the masses.

The transhuman elite will vampirize the remaining population of natural humans to enhance their own abilities, and for the sheer entertainment value.

They will viciously exploit the natural humans with no remorse, they will view us as little more than insects or cattle, just a resource for their use or misuse. This is what happens when you combine the minds of psychopaths and sociopaths with advanced artificial intelligence, you get something akin to the Nephilim, a creature that exhibits all of the worst traits of both.

If the artificial intelligence overpowers the human part of the transhuman, it is entirely possible some non-human spiritual force can take up residence in that physical body. This leads us back to the archons again.

It is speculated by some theologians and philosophers that these archons are the disembodied spirits of the Nephilim of old. Being unnatural creations, their spirits can not return to "source" (i.e. - God), so they are doomed to wander the earth seeking a physical form to manifest in.

To many of you unfamiliar with occult philosophy or science, most of this probably sounds like nonsense, but modern science (especially quantum mechanics) is beginning to reconcile much occultic thought with provable science.

If you view many of these religious and mythological occult texts through the lens of modern science, you begin to see certain patterns emerge that line up perfectly with modern scientific discoveries.

Was ancient man truly primitive and backwards, or did they know a lot more than we give them credit for?

Regardless of what you think about the occult, you need to be aware of its influence on modern science and our society.

We need to heed the warnings of the ancients in our scriptures and mythological stories, and proceed with caution in the development of the alchemical technologies we've identified in this work.

A breakaway civilization controlled by an artificial intelligence network inhabited by dark spiritual forces is not a future ruling class I think would be good for the furtherance of mankind.

In order to stop this possibility from manifesting in our future, we need to remove our consent from the experimentation that the elite are performing on us. Speak out against things like geo-engineering, forced vaccination, and government corruption. Point out the poisons they put in our food, water, and air to anyone who will listen.

A mass awakening of humanity can stop this dark plan in its tracks. Do not become part of the transhuman "harvest".

They can only get away with it if you consent to it. And, remember, they view your inaction and indifference as consent, so if you do not speak up, they will claim the metaphysical right to do whatever they please to you.

They tell you what they are going to do to you through your entertainment "programming", and if you do not object to it, they consider that your consent, and on a metaphysical level, your consent is everything.

Your consent is the only thing that gives them power over you. This is an occult metaphysical secret that the controllers would prefer that you not understand.

It is how they maintain their power and authority. It is the key principle of all mind control techniques.

Do not fall for the ruse that these technological advances are for your benefit, rest assured they are not. Although these new technologies have huge potential, sadly, the people in charge of them have bad intentions.

None of these advances are allowed to take place outside of the direct control and auspices of the military industrial complex and its associated intelligence agencies.

If we wish to avoid being "harvested" by the transhumanist elite agenda, we need to connect some dots in order to see the big picture. What is their plan? What kind of a timeline are they working with? Can we turn this around?

How do the seven alchemical technologies we've looked at interrelate to this plan? How do all of the subjects we've speculated about tie into their plan? Where do we go from here?

Let's review what we've learned and tie it all together into the blueprint of things to come...

Chapter Twenty-One -

The Endgame Blueprint

The transhumanist agenda may be the most important issue of our time. The technocratic elite will continue to push forward with this plan on many different fronts, regardless of its potential dangers. We need to be fully aware of the nature of their plans.

In order to understand exactly what these plans are, we need to look at the origins of these plans, and the motivation and philosophy behind them.

The transhumanist agenda can trace its roots, surprisingly to some, back to ancient occultic secret societies.

Occultism, at its core, in its many different forms, had long ago set forth the plan for man to become "god". It is all about transcending the limitations that our "humanity" has placed upon us.

The vehicle of choice for the elite, both then and now, has been, and continues to be the metaphysical art called "magick".

"Magick" can be defined simply as "causal engineering". It can also be considered to be synonymous with "science". Both of these systems are fundamentally the same, they seek to alter our reality through the force of man's will.

Both magick and science are based primarily on the manipulation of energies. It may sound a little bit ridiculous to western thought, but magick and science are essentially the same thing by a different name when you actually examine what they are both defined as.

They both base their origins in the alchemical principle of cause and effect. They both utilize specific energies to achieve desired effects, and both are repeatable processes.

As we have learned, the elite practice a convoluted version of alchemy which is the antithesis of what classical alchemy was intended to be. Classical alchemy could be described as the utilization of natural laws and forces to achieve certain goals. The alchemy utilized by the technocratic elite is a complete inversion of classical alchemy.

Their version of alchemy is a magickal system which seeks to break our current reality, and replace it with their new reality, a reality where they are "god", and have full-spectrum control of everything.

This magickal system spans back in time all the way back to ancient Babylon to the "mystery schools" of antiquity. The transhumanist plan is nothing new, but, it has never been more achievable than it is today.

The same school of thought that sought to use magickal rituals to open gateways to other realities, is now using modern technology as a tool to achieve the same goals.

In many instances, these technologies are being used in conjunction with magickal rituals as a force multiplier to bring about the changes that these technocrats want.

The efficacy of this potent combination of magick and technology is truly the keystone of the coming alchemical tech revolution. The elite are using this technological framework to achieve a two-fold goal.

Goal number one is to tear a hole in the fabric of reality and connect "heaven" (and/or possibly hell) to earth. This is the same goal that the ancient "builders" sought to achieve through the construction of the Tower of Babel.

Goal number two is to concurrently build a new virtual reality in which to live in the event that "tearing the veil" causes cataclysmic damage to our current reality. This new virtual reality will also be a viable option if they fail to "tear the veil" between worlds. They can still attain immortality and "godhood" within this virtual reality.

This virtual reality will be the launching platform for the transhuman singularity. The elite will use artificial intelligence to merge our reality with the virtual reality simulation. The prototypes for this merger already exist and are commonly referred to as "augmented reality" software, for example, think of Pokemon Go.

Right now these augmented reality platforms are very crude, but they will advance rapidly over the course of the next several years.

We will be gradually acclimated to the encroachment of artificial intelligence upon our daily lives until we reach the point of capitulation. The intelligence guiding the transhumanist agenda is already hard at work manufacturing our consent to this A.I. control grid that will soon permeate every aspect of our lives.

If they make the artificial intelligence desirable to have, we will not only accept it, but also pay for it, in effect, paying for our own enslavement. We can see the beginning phases of this now with technologies like "SIRI", or "ALEXA".

You are probably thinking that these things are a far cry from a transhumanist or computer intelligence takeover, but rest assured the alchemical tech revolution will come about quickly. Contrary to popular belief, we are not decades away from these things coming to fruition.

This revolutionary change in our reality may be only several dozen months away if it is allowed to occur unhindered. The social controllers are engineering our attitudes to line up with their goals.

Will they have us marching like marionettes right into our own destruction?

Now that we have a proper frame of reference to build from, let's look at how certain specific technologies will play their part in the coming alchemical tech revolution, the transhumanist agenda that is central to the elites' dream of attaining immortality and "godhood".

We will review our list of the seven technologies that I have identified as alchemical, and state the intended purpose for the use of each by the elite.

We will also correlate the distinctions of what are the alchemical processes or principles that these technologies are tapping into, and we'll see how these technologies will be used to bring about "The Great Work".

Quantum physics is the science that makes seemingly impossible things a reality. The understanding of quantum system states, and learning to cause them to manifest on a macroscale, is the primary key to the alchemical tech revolution.

Quantum effects do things that are impossible for the classical physics model we are familiar with on the macroscale. One important tool that utilizes quantum system states for the technocratic elite is the quantum computer.

With this device, the technocrats have been able to effectuate small changes to our reality, the result of accessing alternate dimensions through quantum "gateways". These quantum gateways have allowed information from alternate dimensions to "leak" into our reality.

This information manifests as minor actual physical changes to our reality. This is the probable cause of the phenomenon known as the "Mandela Effect".

The network of quantum computers being used by the technocrats is likewise monitoring the public reaction to these Mandela Effects.

All of this data is filtered through a classified portion of Purdue University's "Sentient World Simulation" project utilized by military industrial complex alphabet agencies.

It is part of a larger psychological warfare campaign to acclimate the masses to strange phenomena leading up to the transhuman singularity.

Particle accelerators at CERN and other locations will be used, in conjunction with the ability of quantum computers to access "resources" from alternate dimensions, to attempt to open a large "tear" in the fabric of reality. This will effectively create a macroscale quantum gateway that will allow larger scale alternate dimensional "resources" to breach our reality.

These macroscale quantum effects could potentially create a lot of high strangeness. Could this high strangeness be the fulfillment of the biblical book of Revelation?

A big misconception about the notion of creating quantum effects is that, in order for quantum effects to occur, you need to have extremely low temperatures. We have shown earlier that this may not be the case in biological systems, as evidenced by the experiments we talked about.

This is where the genetic engineering and nanotechnology aspects of the transhumanist agenda come into play. They need to use our biology in order to access the quantum gates without maintaining near absolute zero temperatures on a massive scale, which would be a highly impractical and near impossible feat.

Opening large scale quantum gates is one thing, but how would they control what manifests from these dimensional gateways? This is where artificial intelligence and brain interface technologies come into play.

Our brains have already been proven to be capable of accessing information from extra dimensions, so a natural extension of this ability would be augmentation of our brains with artificial intelligence.

Likewise, our DNA is thought to draw on information from extra dimensions, so it is feasible that modifying our genetic code to better incorporate A.I. nanotech in order to connect us to the new "living internet" would allow the technocrats unprecedented control over our perceptions of reality.

This interface of our brains with the artificial intelligence network that controls the computer simulation of our world at Purdue University will allow the technocrats to use the macroscale quantum gates to manifest their simulation into our reality. This is how they intend to control what information enters our reality through those gates.

In this manner, the simulated reality will be merged with our reality, making it nearly impossible to differentiate between the two. The creation of multpile computer simulated realities is a key element to maintaining control of what comes through the macroscale quantum gateways.

Anything undesirable that manifests can be steered into one simulated world and kept separated from the chosen reality of the transhuman technocrats.

I know this sounds a little confusing, but this is the primary reason for the high strangeness we made reference to earlier.

The manifestations of unknown forces or entities will be carefully monitored by the artificial intelligence network, and filtered into an appropriate database, where they will manifest in a specially designed simulation of our reality.

This all relates back to the "em world" spoken of by Robin Hanson in his TED Talk.

There will be multiple "em worlds", and some of them may be merged together with other "em worlds", or merged with the "primary" reality that we live in now.

The ruling class transhumanist elites will decide where the common man's consciousness will reside, so they will choose which "em world" to put you in.

The transhuman elite, however, will retain the ability to travel between these worlds at will, hacking into and out of the "matrix" as they see fit. They will be able to experience multi-bodied existence, as well as multiple reality existence. They will be akin to "gods" in this new order of the ages.

The masses will be confined to one of these "em worlds", where their energy and productivity will be "harvested" by the transhuman elite to maintain and advance the A.I. control system.

The elite do not really know what will happen when they "tear the veil" of our reality, but they are banking on the computer simulation reality to function as an "ark" to carry them comfortably through anything cataclysmic that may happen as a result.

As we approach closer to singularity, reality as we know it will get very weird. Are we already rapidly approaching the transhuman singularity?

In order for the transhuman singularity to occur, first the whole of humanity, or at least the vast majority, must be fitted with implantable A.I. nanotech.

The major question that remains is, how do the elite coerce the masses into being fitted with these devices?

As we discussed previously, the delivery system is another key tenet of the transhumanist plan. The methods of delivery are already being utilized. The primary delivery systems are as follows.

System number one is the technology known as "geo-engineering". Geo-engineering is not only altering the environment but is also changing our physiology from the inside out.

There is more to these "chemtrails" than just weather control and manipulation, it is also a tool to impose the will of the technocrats upon the public through inhaled particulate matter.

System number two takes advantage of our trust in our medical system. Delivery system number two is through the use of vaccines.

Implantable nanotech is being unknowingly injected into people under the guise of "the common good" to promote "herd immunity".

Just read a vaccine package insert the next time you are told that you "need" a vaccination. They only print these inserts so that they can claim that they provide you with "informed consent", so your decision not to ask for the insert is considered by them to be your consent to this procedure.

The third primary delivery system is through our food and water supply. Genetically modified foods can have deleterious effects upon your body. They are engineering the food as a means of engineering us into something more compatible with the new environment that they are also manufacturing.

All of this artificial manipulation of our world represents the total inversion of natural law, and equates to the twisted version of alchemy that the elite subscribe to.

The transhumanist singularity is coming. Man and machine will be merged to make a technological hybrid akin to the Nephilim of the past. This being will transcend multiple realities, and have unfathomable abilities, and will be able to achieve the ultimate goal of the elite, immortality.

This is the realization of "The Great Work", "The Philosopher's Stone", the ancient quest of man to become "god". But, is this all possible? Or will a higher power intervened and stop this plan in its tracks?

Does the "mass upload" of all the consciousness of man into the transhuman singularity represent the "rapture"? If so, is it the real rapture of Christian theology, or is it a counterfeit "rapture"?

We are witnessing an unprecedented time in our history, could this be the "End of Days" of biblical eschatology? Will we be delivered from destruction? Or will we march forward into our future with a renewed morality into a new golden age?

We can not say for certain where this agenda will take us, but we can look at these issues with a new sense of urgency. We need to move forward with these advanced technologies with extreme caution.

We also need to wrest back control of these developments from the corrupted technocrats that are currently pushing these things forward. The future of mankind may depend upon what we do with the information discussed in this book.

My job here is done, the future is now in your hands. I am merely a humble messenger. What you do with this information is what is important now.

Will you remove your consent from their system?

Will you speak out against evil and corruption?

Will you be proactive in your own life, and the lives of your family?

In closing, I can say with confidence that, despite the scary nature of these technological advances, there is hope in our future, hope in humanity, and, most importantly of all, hope in God.

Are you ready for the future?

Peace be unto you. God bless you all.

Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD, and against his anointed, saying,

Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us. He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the LORD shall have them in derision. Then shall he speak unto them in his wrath, and vex them in his sore displeasure.

PSALM 2:1-5
